THE FIRST SETTLERS OF BERGEN

by

NICHOLAS GARRETSON VREELAND

WHILE Gemonepan (Communipaw), the "Village on the Shore," was settled as early as 1630, the formally recognized Village of Bergen was not so known until 1660. Both of these, with other settlements, were officially incorporated as the Village of Bergen. What might be called the Village of Communipaw was, in reality, a row of houses¹ facing New York Bay from Mill Creek south-erly, later outlined by the present Phillips Street, with scattered houses between the shore and the hill to the westward.

Jan Evertson Bout was the first known settler in this section, who in 1634 came there as an official of Michael Pauw, the Patroon. Six years later, Egbert Wouterson came into possession of "Jan de Lacher's Hook," later known as Mill Creek Point, the ancestral home of the Van Horne family. Jacob Walling Van Winkle was a settler as early as 1641 but removed to Rensselaerswyck, returning nine years later. Bout sold in 1646 a portion of his farm to Michael Jansen, the common ancestor of the Vreeland family, and moved to Breuckelen.

In

In 1655, the Indians drove out all of the Communipaw people, killing or capturing nearly every white person. A few families escaped by boat to New Amsterdam, among them that of Michael Jansen, who lived for three years on the corner of what is now William and Stone Streets, and returned to Communipaw in 1658, where he lived until the year of his death in 1663.

Constable Hook, named for Constable (gunner) Jacob Jacobsen Roy, was first occupied for residence in 1646.

To Greenville came Dirck Jansen Dey, Claes Carstens and others prior to 1659. Other names are mentioned as among the early owners of land in this section, but many of these never settled upon the land, being possibly only speculators.

Early in 1660 petitions were sent to the Governor and Council of New Netherland, for permission to settle upon the lands on the "Berg" (Hill) back of Communipaw, but Governor Stuyvesant was so fearful of the safety of the people, owing to the numerous Indian invasions, that he refused to give the permission desired. Later in the year, Michael Jansen, as representative of the district on the west side of the river in the council of "Nine Men," made such strong representations to him, that he gave permission to form a settlement, provided it was protected by a strong palisadoed fence built around it. This was done, and the tract inside the fence was divided into thirty-two plots¹ facing the six roads which are now known as Bergen Avenue, Academy Street, Tuers Avenue, Newkirk Street, Vroom Street, and Van Reypen Street. This map was made by Jacques Cortelyou, the surveyor of New Amsterdam; but though the most diligent search has been prosecuted, no trace of it has been found, nor has there been discovered any list of the names of the original patentees. In accordance with Dutch custom, a church and school were established and service was conducted by volunteers until 1663, when a petition to the Council of New Netherland² was signed by the Magistrates of Bergen, asking that a clergyman be formally assigned, and annexing as evidence of the good faith of the petitioners a subscription list of four hundred and seventeen guilders, in seawan, as a nucleus for the support of the proposed institution. The names of the subscribers give us our earliest clue to the names of the more prominent earliest settlers of Bergen, which title then officially covered not only the settlement inside the palisades but also the districts of Communi-paw, Greenville, and Bergen Point; actually all of the present Hudson County reaching from Kill van Kull on the south to the Bergen woods on the north, with the exception of the people of Harsimus and Paulus Hook, who, by reason of propinquity, worshipped in New Amsterdam. This conclusion is more readily assured because none of the names of the settlers of these last named sections appeared on the petition. We think that we may safely deduce, therefore, that the names appearing on this list¹ covered a great proportion of the First Settlers of Bergen, especially as we later trace up the future history of each one and his connection with the future ruling families.

Taking them up in the order written, we find at the top Tielman Van Vleck, Michael Jansen, Harman Smeeman and Caspar Steynmets. These were the Magistrates of Bergen and were given the preference, which was emphasized by their becoming the largest contributors.

TRANSPOSITION OF FAMILY NAMES

At the time of the settlement of New Netherland, surnames were comparatively unknown; many of the family names now in use were not known in the old country as such; out of our list only the names Post, Van Vleck and Steynmets existed as recognized family names, the others being used for a generation only, to be replaced optionally by the father's name, his occupation, or the name of the old home town. The sons took for their last names the names of their fathers, with the syllable "sen" (son) annexed. Thus, Michael Jansen, ¹ See complete list on pages 14 and 15 | of HOLLAND SOCIETY YEAR BOOK 1913.

Jansen, son of Jan or John; Gerrit Gerritsen, son of Gerrit; and so on. Sometimes the occupation of the father was continued in his son's name, thus: Jan Bleecker; John the Bleacher, and again the home town was often tacked on to the surname.

In the Vreeland family is found first Michael Jansen, son of Jan or John van Vreeland; then Michael Jansen van Schrabbeckerke, the last being the familiar name of the church home town in Zeeland with which he was connected. Upon landing here, he first went to Rensselaerswyck, opposite Albany, and settled on the "Hooge Berg" (High Hill) farm; when he left there to come to New Jersey he was put down as Michael Jansen van der Burgh. Being a plain Dutchman, however, he dropped all the extra titles and stuck to the plain Jansen all the rest of his life. His children were all Michelsons, and it was not until the third generation in this country that the real and original family name was used by all of the Vreelands.

While the choice of family patronymics varied, a method prevailed in the choice of the first name of the children. The first son was almost always named for his paternal grandfather, the second after his maternal grandfather, and after these the uncles were honored. The girl's maternal grandmother was first honored, then the paternal grandmother and so on. This makes it comparatively easy for the genealogist to locate family lines. Certain names were maintained through many generations, such as Adrian, among the Posts; Garret among the Garretsons or Van Wagenens—primarily the same family; Michael among the descendants of the original Michael Jansen Vreeland; Walling in the Van Winkle family; Henry among the Brinkerhoffs, and so on. In one family we find Elias Adrian and Adrian Elias alternating with each succeeding generation for a hundred years and more. Sometimes one can tell by the middle name pretty near who the father was. Thus, John Jacobs was son of Jacob, and so forth. Adrian has been perpetuated in the Adriance family; Reyer in the Ryerson; Pieter in the Petersons; The Dutch Jurriaen, taken for a corruption of of Yurrie, by easy gradations became Yerry, Jerry and Jeremiah or in other instances Uriah; Yerry's son would be called Yearance, and here we have another family name. Anderson, as a family name, sounds Scotch, but the original Andersons were sons of Andries Claussen who married Michael Jansen's daughter Pryntje (Penelope). Johnson is often thought to be of English stock, but Rut Jansen, who settled in Somerset County, is generally credited with being the head of the line. A man named De Gray prided himself on being a Frenchman but his grandfather was De Grauw, which is surely Dutch; Longfield, another English name, was originally Langeveldt.

DUTCH REVERENCE

As one writer has stated, "The Jersey Dutch were a God-fearing people, constant in their church going. These men and women had the strongest kind of faith in the doctrines of their church. Their piety was exemplified in their wills."

"I, Nicholas Vreeland, being in health of body and a perfect mind and memory blessed of God, therefore, and calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing it is appointed for all men to die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament:

First: I recommend my immortal spirit in the hands of my great Creator, trusting in the merits of the blessed Saviour for pardon and remission of my sins, and a happy admission to the regions of bliss and immortality."

Their simple faith was also often inscribed upon their tombstones:

"When overwhelmed with grief,
My heart within me dies;
Helpless and far from all on earth,
To Heaven I lift my eyes."

RACE

RACE SUICIDE

Symon Jacobs Van Winkle dying in 1732, left twelve children, and one of these had twenty, of which thirteen survived their father. A story is told of how he started to carve their initials on the front door posts, and running short of space used the stone doorstep to complete his list. There must have been necessitated a roll call at bed time: Abraham, Johannes, Simeon, Jacob, Antje, Feytje, Saertje, Tryntje, Rachel, Jannetje, Lena, Margrietje, Gertje and half a dozen others whose early demise prevented a record of their names.

Michael Jansen had six sons and two daughters. The Vreeland Book records the birth of sixty-three grandchildren among the sons, and it is fair to assume that the two daughters did their share, which would indicate that not less than seventy-five grandchildren perpetuated the memory of the founder of the Vreeland family in this country.

Of the twenty-seven subscribers to the church establishment added to the nine others who were evidently too modest to state an exact sum they would contribute, less than a score seem to have been eligible to the list of "First Settlers" or heads of families, and of these I have been enabled to acquire information of eleven distinct families among the original subscribers and to these I have added four who were equally prominent and eminent in the good work of building up the country later on. In preparing the brief family histories the assistance of representative descendants now living was invoked for details and data. The families whose brief records are given were represented on the petition by: ¹Tielman Van Vleck, Michael Jansen (Vreeland), Caspar Steynmets, Van Winkle, Tallman, Gerrit Gerritsen (Van Wagenen), Paulus Pietersen (Newkirk), Adrian Post, Lourens Andries (Van Buskirk), Jan Cornelius (Van Horn), Claes Arentsen (Sip).

Those

the 1913 YEAR BOOK OF THE HOLLAND SOCIETY.

Those whose stories are also related, who came upon the scenes, at subsequent dates, were: Garabrant, Van Reyphen, Winner, Brinkerhoff. This by no means ends the list of the settlers, but time forbids us going deeper into the story at this period.

VAN VLECK

TIELMAN VAN VLECK was a descendant of a noble family whose estate, called "Vlieck," was located near the city of Maastricht in the Province of Limburg.

The Tielman Van Vleck of Bergen fame, according to court records of the city of Amsterdam, dated February 23, 1635, is described as being twenty-one years old, and the only child of Tielman Van Vleck and Maria Moors. He married Magdalena Herlin of Bremen, in the church of St. Augustine. Eight children blessed their union. On June 3, 1656, he was enrolled as a shopkeeper of Bremen. The date of his arrival in this country is not obtainable, but it is supposed that he came over on the ship De Vergulde Bever (The Gilded Beaver), which sailed from Amsterdam May 15, 1658, and arrived at New Amsterdam in July. On July 29, he was licensed as a Notary of New Netherland. On December 16, 1658, he purchased from Mighiel Paulissen, the ancestor of the Vandervoort family, a house and lot on the north side of the Hooge (High) Street, later Stone Street, near what is now Hanover Square. Two petitions drawn up by him and headed by his name were presented to Governor Stuyvesant in 1660, for the establishment of the Village of Bergen but were denied because of the fear of Indian attacks. The third paper, drawn up by Van Vleck and urged in person by Michael Jansen Vreeland, the New Jersey representative in the Council, was agreed to upon promise of having the village surrounded by a strong palisade. Van Vleck was named as the first "Schout," or President, of the court of Bergen. On May 25, 1668, Van Vleck appeared before the Magistrates of the Village of Bergen and declared that he had deeded to Ide Cornelissen, a resident of Harsimus, a parcel of land

land lying between those of Hendrick Jansen van Ostrum and Adrian van Laer. Governor Philip Carteret in 1670 gave him a deed to a plot of upland and meadow between Jan Lubbertsen, Frederick Phillips, Harman Edwards and Thomas Fredericks, facing on the "Common," the present Van Vorst Square. This would locate Van Vleck as a resident of Paulus Hook.

VREELAND

MICHAEL JANSEN VREELAND, the common ancestor of the Vreeland family, came from Holland on the ship Het Wapen van Norwegen (Arms of Norway) in 1638. He owned a farm or polder in South Beveland, one of the islands of the Province of Zeeland, but his church home was in the village of 'sHeer Abtskerke, three miles from his farm, the common name of the village being Schrabbeke. From here he went to Bergen-op-Zoom, in Brabant, and took boat to Amsterdam, from whence he sailed in May, 1638, and arrived in New Amsterdam on August 4. Arrangements had previously been made with Patroon Killian van Rensselaer, who had been granted a large tract of land surrounding the present site of the city of Albany, on both sides of the Hudson River. Jansen leased the farm known as the "Hooge-Berg," located on an elevation immediately opposite the present city. His latent energy and enterprise were so confined by his work as a farmer that he branched out into fur trading with the Indians, and speedily came into conflict with the parent trust of the hemisphere, the Dutch West India Company.¹ Undismayed, Jansen brought the questions at issue into court and was later sustained on all the counts. Adding to the products of his farm the fish and oysters which were so plentiful in the adjoining waters, he found market in the city opposite and speedily acquired a fortune as fortunes went in those days, which he invested in cattle. When the Dutch colony was settling on the Delaware, Jansen supplied them with part of their cattle. One year after his coming coming to Communipaw, Governor Peter Stuyvesant took up the reins of government in New Amsterdam, and, being anxious to maintain a representative government, appointed nine advisers, Jansen being made the representative for the west side of the river. He must have proved to be a good adviser, because in 1656 he was offered the Vice-Governorship at Fort Orange, later Albany, but he declined the honor, preferring, evidently, to stay and work for his present constituency. As in Albany, the reputation of the fairness of his dealings with the Indians made him popular in Communipaw; his friendship with the red men acted in his favor during the awful times of 1655, when his family was exempted from capture or death.

VAN WINKEL

JACOB WALIGH, WALINGS, WALINGEN or WALINGSEN and his brother Symon were among the very first farmers to permanently locate in New Netherland. Symon's untimely death¹ cut short this branch of the Walicks family, who were residents of the Village of Winkel in North Holland, located about fifteen miles northwest of Hoorn, as far back as the beginning of the fourteenth century.² Jacob, the progenitor of the Van Winkle family in New Netherland, was the occupant of one of the six Company-Bouwerries on Manhattan Island started by the Dutch West India Company in 1624³ and continued by the Company in May, 1630, under new management. An inventory of Jacob's possessions on July 2, 1631, indicates that he had on his farm six saddle horses, two stallions, six cows, two bulls and twenty-two sheep, and that he was successful with his breeding of cattle. He made a trip to Holland for the purpose of further stocking his farm, in 1633, in the ship De Southbergh on its return trip, after bringing the new Governor, Wouter Van Twiller, to New Netherland in April, 1633. While at Hoorn he united with the Dutch Church by certificate on December 18, 1633.¹ His stay in Hoorn was short, for in the fall of the next year Jacob Walingsen returned to New Netherland on De Coninck David (King David) captained by David de Vries, arriving at New Amsterdam in June, 1635, a little over a year prior to the expiration of his lease of the Company's-Bouwerie No. 5.² During his absence the bouwerie was managed by Claes Cornelisz Swits.³ After the expiration of his lease, Jacob Walingsen entered into a contract with Patroon Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, August 15, 1636, and settled on a farm at Rensselaerswyck. On October 1, 1650, he returned to Manhattan, although offered the choice of several farms if he would remain in the colony.

August 29, 1641, Jacob Walingsen was appointed a member of the Board, "The Twelve Men," the first representative official body within the limits of New York and New Jersey. This Board was advisory to Governor Kieft and represented the inhabitants of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Pavonia in the consideration of the general treatment of the Indians.

Prior to 1635, Jacob Walingsen led a movement to establish a settlement on the Connecticut River,⁴ but, because of the lack of support of his contemporaries and failure to obtain permission of the West India Company, owing to fear of Indian attack, the project was abandoned. October 23, 1654, he secured a grant of land at Pavonia, now Jersey City, New Jersey, where the family has been continuously represented for eleven generations.

Jacob Walingsen died in the early part of the year 1657, leaving a widow, Trintje Jacobs, and six minor children, three girls and three boys. Michael Jansen Vreeland and Burgomaster Van der Grift¹ were appointed guardians of the children.

The Van Winkle line from the first progenitor in New Netherland to the Recording Secretary of The Holland Society is as follows: Jacob Walingsen Van Winkle, one of the Board of Twelve Men, member of the General Court in 1640, and Trintje Jacobs; Jacob Jacobse Van Winkle and Grietje Hendrickse Hellingh; Hendrick Van Winkle and Catrina Waldron; Jacob Van Winkle, 1st Lieutenant in Captain Nicausa Terhune's Company of Militia in the Precinct of New Barbadoes, 1775-1778, deacon of the First Dutch Church in New Jersey chartered by the Crown and incorporated under the name of The Ministry Elders and Deacons, December 20, 1771, and Rachel Cammega; Daniel Van Winkle and Antje Winne; Jacob D. Van Winkle and Antje Vreeland; Jacob Van Winkle, who served in the War of 1812, and Maria Sip, daughter of Colonel Garret Sip; Edward Van Winkle, who served in the Civil War—Company G—37th Regiment of New York, and Mary Jane Wandle; Edward Van Winkle, Recording Secretary of The Holland Society of New York, and Sama Le Roy Batdorf.

STEYNMETS

CASPAR STEYNMETS was born in Holland; it is said at Schiedam, but the exact time or place has not been authenticated. He arrived in New Amsterdam in 1631 and with his brother sailed up the river to Albany, and there became prominent in trading with the Indians. His oldest child, named after him, was baptized in 1650; his wife being Dorothea Arentsen (Van Wagenen). At her death he married again Jennetje Gerritsen (Van Wagenen) of Ahasimus. He therefore became connected by marriage with both of the distinct branches of the Van Wagenen family, that of Esopus and that of Bergen. Steynmets purchase a plot of land on Winkle Street, near Fort Amsterdam. In 1652, he removed to New Jersey and purchased a "Bouwery" in Ahasimus. Here he combined the two businesses of farming and trading trading and became well-to-do. The Indian troubles forced him back to New Amsterdam but he returned in 1658 and lived within the Bergen Township limits until his death in 1702. All of his children were baptized in the old church at the fort. He was organizer of a company of militia and was commissioned lieutenant and later became captain. He was well educated and his knowledge of the Indian language made him valuable as an interpreter in their dealings with the whites. After the English occupation in 1664, he was continued in office by Governor Philip Carteret, having previously been made a judge by Governor Stuyvesant. In 1671, he was married, for the third time, to the widow of Michael Tades, and moved to her farm in Ahasimus. At her death he gave the home farm to his sons John and Gerrit, but continued to live in the homestead until his death. He was buried in the old Bergen cemetery. John Steynmets willed his portion of the farm to his sister, Joanna Prior, and she in turn gave it to her son, Jacob Prior.

VAN BUSKIRK

The common ancestor of the Van Buskirk family in this country was Laurens Andriessen, who came over in 1655. His name appears as an owner of a lot on Broad Street, New Amsterdam, June 29, 1656. Shortly after he purchased land in Minkakwa, later Greenville. In 1668, he was appointed "Recorder and Marker" for Minkakwa, and in 1676 was appointed "Marker General" for the Town of Bergen. He was commissioned a member of the Court of Bergen in 1677 and was made president of the same in 1681. He married Jannetje Jans, widow of Christian Barentsen in 1658. He died in 1694. His son, Pieter, born in 1666, married Trintje Harmanse of Constable Hook, and went there to live in the house which was torn down only last year. He was the ancestor of the Van Buskirks of Bergen, later Hudson County.

TALLMAN

The original spelling of this name was Taelman, and occasionally Talma, which literally translated means a linguist or an interpreter. The early records of the Dutch branch of the family in this country are found under the patronymics of Harmens, Harmense, Hermzen, Harmenszen, Dowsa, Douwens and Douwenszen.

The first known American ancestor of this branch of the family was Douwe Harmense Taelman, who with his wife and children emigrated from the province of Friesland, Netherland, in the ship Brownfish, arriving in New Amsterdam on the 19th of June, 1658. While in the "Records of New Amsterdam" he is mentioned as having been in the courts upon different matters in the years 1658 and 1659, we have reason to believe he took up his residence at Bergen, now a part of Jersey City, soon after his arrival in this country. For we also find in the same records that in the description of a plot of land he bought on the east side of "Heere Gracht" (Broad Street), in New Amsterdam, on August 2, 1662, he is mentioned as being a resident of Bergen. And in December of the same year he subscribed six florins a year for the support of a minister at this latter place.¹

In an official survey of some plots or tracts of land "in the new maize lands," made by Jacques Cortelyou, C.E.,² for Douwe Harmense in November, 1660, lying in and about the Town of Bergen, preparatory to making an application for a patent for the same, the name of Bergen was first used; and the patent for such plots was granted by Governor Philip Carteret for some five parcels under date of May 12, 1668. This same patentee later secured a further patent for lands embracing the present village of Nyack, N. Y.

Douwe Harmense Taelman died at Bergen and was buried on the nineteenth of June, 1687. A declaration of his will was recorded in the office of the Secretary of State

State, at Trenton, N. J.¹ All his property was left to his two sons, Harmen Douwenszen Taelman and Thunis Douwenszen Taelman, who soon after their father's death removed to Nyack, N. Y. The older son, Harmen, died early in life, and previous to April, 8, 1691; as on this date his widow was married to Abraham Blauvelt. The younger son, Thunis, finally came into possession of most of the estate left by his father, and died at Nyack, N. Y., July 17, 1739. From these two sons have descended most of the families bearing the name of Tallman, Talman, or Taulman. And while in their early history they resided in the vicinity of New York City, they may now be found in nearly every section of the United States.

VAN WAGENEN

Wageningen is one of the prominent towns of Holland, located on the banks of the River Rhine, in the Province of Gelderland, and is noted as a summer resort. The family in this country has descended from two distinct pioneers, so far as we know in no way related. The first was Aert Jacobsen, who came over about 1648 and settled in Bethlehem, New York, and later in Esopus. The Van Wagenens of that section are his descendants.

Gerrit Gerritsen, of Bergen fame, arrived in New Amsterdam with his wife Annetje Hermans, December 23, 1660, and settled in Communipaw. He soon took a leading part in public affairs. He brought with him a certificate which reads as follows:

"We, Burgomasters, schepens, and counsellors of the city of Wageningen, declare by these presents that there appeared before us Hendrick Elissen and Jordiz Speer, citizens of this city, at the request of Gerrit Gerritsen and Annetje Hermans, his wife.

"They have testified and certified as they do by these presents that they have good knowledge of the above-named Gerritsen and Annetje Hermans, his wife, as to their life and conversation, and that they have always been considered and esteemed as pious and honest people, and that no complaint of any evil or disorderly conduct has ever reached their ears; on the contrary, they have always led quiet, pious and honest lives as it becomes pious and honest persons. They especially testify, that they govern their family well, and bring up their children in the fear of God and in all modesty and respectability. As the above-named persons have resolved to remove and proceed to New Netherland, in order to find greater convenience, they give this attestation, grounded on their knowledge of them, having known them intimately and having been in continual intercourse with them for many years, living in the same neighborhood.

"In testimony of the truth, we, the burgomasters, of the city, have caused the private seal of the city to be hereto affixed.

"Done at Wageningen, 27th of November, 1660.

"By the ordinance of the same,

J. AQUELIN."

NEWKIRK

It is not positively known from which of the many towns in Holland called "Nieuwerkerke" the particular ancestor of this family came, but it is generally believed that he was from Nijkerk, or Nieuwerkerke, in Gelderland, from whence also came the Van Rensse-laers, Van Twillers, and Van Curlers. As an eloquent writer puts it: "Here, in the midst of tobacco lands, pretty gardens and grain fields, three-fourths of an hour's walk from the Zuyder Zee; from this ancient home came scores of the ancestors of the people of New Netherland. These hardy sons and daughters of the Dutch Republic were true argonauts. They sailed away to cover the soil of New Netherland with a golden fleece."

Guert Cornelissen Van Nieuwkerke came over in the ship Moesman from Holland, arriving on April 15, 1659.

Matthew Cornelissen, the common ancestor of the Bergen families of Newkirks was, according to Dr.

A. B. Newkirk

A. B. Newkirk, the family historian, a brother of Guert; but Thomas J. Newkirk, a worker in the genealogical field, insists that he was Guert's son. It is reported that in 1659, Guert came with his wife and a son twelve years old and a "nursing child." Matthew marrying in 1670, is supposed to have been the oldest child, rather than the brother. He went first to Flatbush, Long Island, where he bought a farm bordering on Corlear's Flats. In 1665, he sold this and moved to Bergen. Five years later he married Anna, daughter of Jacob Luby, who had served under the West India Company. His wife died in 1685, and the next year he married Catherine, daughter of Paulus Pietersen. His lineal descendants still live on the original house site, the present building having been erected in 1810.

POST

ADRIAN POST was the pioneer of this family, and he arrived in this country from the Hague, Holland, in 1650, and settled in Communipaw. He was very prominent in public affairs in Staten Island till 1655 and then settled in New Jersey. He was elected ensign of the first militia company, under Captain Caspar Steynmets. His son Adrian married, in 1677,¹ Catrintje Gerrits, daughter of Gerrit Gerritsen (Van Wagenen). The other sons went out to Acquackanonck, and the numerous families of that name in Bergen and Passaic Counties are descended from these. The Post homestead site on the shores of New York Bay is still occupied as a home, in which, until very recent years, resided a lineal descendant of one of Bergen's First Settlers.

VAN HORN

In North Holland the once famous city of Hoorn is situated on the Zuyder Zee, about twenty miles north of Amsterdam. From this place came Jan Cornelissen to New Amsterdam about 1645. He settled in Hackensack and here raised a family, some of his descendants continuing continuing in the Hackensack section, and others going to Communipaw, where land is still owned by members of the family. Cornelissen's son Joris (George) married Maria Rutgers, and in his turn his oldest son married a granddaughter of Michael Jansen Vreeland.

SIP

This old Dutch family has been continuously located in New Jersey, for two and a half centuries, and seven generations have been born in one house. This house was built in 1664, and is still occupied by a lineal descendant of the founder of the family, Adrian Hendricksen Sip. He came from Breda, Holland, in 1641, and joined the church in Bergen in 1666. The homes of the period were usually one-story structures, built of stone or wood, or both. As in the old country, the gable ends generally were turned to the road. This, in old country custom, was done to conserve the rain water supply for washing purposes, and also that the snow would not fall on the people passing, a consideration not so generally exercised nowadays. Adrian Sip married, first, Countess Gritje Warnants van Schoneveldt and second, Geertruje Auriens. Among the children, Antje married Simon Jacobs Van Winkle. Jan Arianse, the second son, was an important and influential personage in the town of Bergen; he served in the militia, as did his son Ide. Ide's son, Garret, had a son, Peter, who was a prominent jurist, serving as Judge in both Bergen and Hudson Counties. He was one of the earliest supporters of the Republican party, founded in 1856. His son, Richard, followed in his father's footsteps in position and politics, and his son, Richard Garret Sip, now occupies the old homestead. Rumor has it that when Light Horse Harry Lee came from Hackensack to Bergen he stopped at the Sip homestead stables, and, by force of arms, exchanged his wornout horse for a fresher and better one. Three spies were hung on the old willow tree in front of the house.

GARRABRANT

GARRABRANT

GERBRAND CLAUSSEN was a man of much influence in Bergen and held many official positions. He married a daughter of Claus Pieterse Cos, whose name will be found on the original petition. About 1657, Cos purchased a part of the farm of Jan Evertse Bout at Communipaw. Claussen's children lived on the original farm for many years, but the original settler in 1689 moved to Dutchess County, New York. Some of his descendants moved to Pequannock. Two of his sons and one daughter married Van Ripens, one a Merselis, one son wed a Prior, one a Van Winkle, and a daughter married a Van Wagenen, thereby linking up a number of the old leading families of that day and generation.

VAN REYPEN

JURIAN TOMASSEN was the common ancestor of the family which now spells its name in the various forms of Van Reypen, Van Ripen, and Van Riper, and also of the Yearance family. He sailed to this country in the ship De Bonte Coe (The Spotted Cow) from Amsterdam on April 16, 1663.¹ There is a place called Rypend in Friesland and another called De Ryp in North Holland, and Tomassen came from one of these, and most likely the latter. After arriving in this country, Tomassen first went further west and in 1664 he was a member of a syndicate which secured the Acquackanonck patent in what is now Passaic County. He did not settle there permanently, but at least one of his sons, Harman, and other descendants settled there later. Tomassen came to the settlement of Bergen between 1664 and 1667 and acquired the plot which has been continuously occupied by some of his descendants to the present day, viz., lot 161 in the survey of 1660 of Bergen² and Buyten Tuyn, and which is now known as 311 Academy Street, at the intersection of Academy and Van Reypen Streets. Tomassen was recorded as a member of the Bergen Church in 1667. In addition to the above plot, he acquired other land, both within the stockade and among the Out Gardens, under the will of Guert Coerten, dated 1671. He married Reycke Hermens, May 25, 1667. They had ten children, five sons and five daughters. The sons, following the custom of the time, took as a surname one constructed from the father's given name. Juriaense, Jurjanse and Jurijaense are various forms in which it was spelled in the old church records. With some later descendants this was gradually changed into Jurrianse, then Yereance. The line of descent from Juriaen Tomassen to his descendants who now occupy the old homestead, is through his second son: Gerrit Juriaense, Jurijaense or Jurjanse (1670-1748). The name is spelled in all the three ways in the church records. Cornelis Gerretsen or Jurrianse (1707-1771), fourth son of Gerrit; Daniel Van Reyden (1736-1818), second son of Cornelis; Cornelius Van Reyden (1767-1842), eldest son of Daniel; Cornelius C. Van Reyden (1813-1900), eighth child and youngest son of Cornelius. Surgeon General Wm. K. Van Reyden, U. S. N., retired; only surviving son of C. C. The homestead is now occupied by the youngest daughter of Cornelius C., Mrs. Anna Van Reyden Green. In the old records of the Bergen church the first appearance of this new name is under the date of October, 1761, when the witnesses to a baptism are given as "Daniel Van Rype" and his sister, "Beeletje Van Rype." In February, 1762, Merytje Van Rype is noted as a witness. In December, 1762, was recorded the birth and baptism of Catrientje, the eldest child of Daniel Van Reyden and Elisabet Terheun. (Daniel was the second son of Cornelis.) It appears that the only ones to use the spelling Van Reyden were those most closely associated with the Bergen homestead. Other descendants use some of the many other forms. Van Riper seems to be the form used by the greatest number of the present descendants of Juriaen Tomassen, although Van Ripen would seem to have been the most logical form.

WINNE

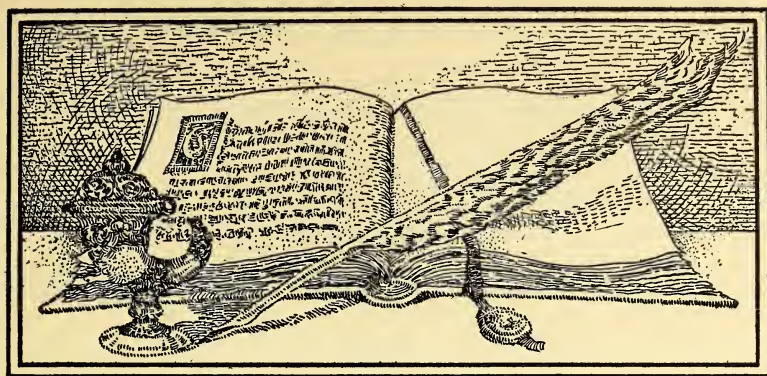

WINNE

So little is recorded of the early history of this old Bergen family, that we are only permitted to note that the founder, Peter Winne, came from Ghent in Flanders in 1650. His wife's name was Jannetje Adams. His grandson, Martin, went to Albany to live for a while but returned to Bergen, and the family then descended, generation by generation, to Johan, Martin, Martin, Johan, Martin, John and then John again, who now lives on what the march of the city's improvement has left of the old home farm.

BRINKERHOFF

JORIS DIRCKSEN BRINKERHOFF, the founder of the family, came from Drenthe, Holland, about 1638. He settled in Staten Island, but was driven out by the Indians, and went to Long Island; his oldest son was killed by the red men; his second son, Hendrick, bought land in Bergen in 1667, and his descendants still live there. Hendrick's son, Cornelius, married Aegie Vreeland; the next generation brought Hartman; Hartman's son, Hendrick, married Lea Van Wagenen and their son, Hartman, married Eleanor Clendenny; Hartman's son, John, married Hannah Tise, and from this union came Ex-Senator William Brinkerhoff and Henry, father of Brigadier-General Henry Brinkerhoff, a former Vice-President of The Holland Society.

THE HOLLAND SOCIETY OF NEW YORK

*MINUTES OF THE CONSISTORY, BURIALS AND LIST OF MEMBERS of the
REFORMED PROTESTANT DUTCH CHURCH OF BERGEN IN NEW JERSEY,
Founded in 1660.*

BERGEN, May 14-1716

Meeting of the consistory and resolved after calling upon the Lord's Name:

to remove some inconveniences in regard to the seatings. And it was further resolved; in order to prevent dissensions in the future, and that the church-masters may know how to deal without any (fear of) opposition, in several cases; to lay before the male members of the church certain salutary (heilzame) propositions made by the consistory, in order to decide upon them by a majority of votes. (For that purpose the congregation will be requested from the pulpit, in the forenoon, to come together in the barn belonging to Helmig Roelofse.)

This having been done, on the date and at the place aforesaid, all male members of the congregation who met there with the churchmasters and the consistory, resolved that in the future the following five articles shall be observed by the churchmasters and that everybody, whom they concern, shall have to submit to them, without opposition. Viz.:

- I Members of the Church, who are in the possession of seats, by purchase, or by other lawful manner, shall remain in the peaceful possession of them, either till their death or until their departure or leave-taking from the congregation.
- II All those who do not belong to the village of Bergen, or to this church and who do not contribute for the church, the school or the religious services, shall pay for every seat (either for man or woman) six shillings current money per annum, to the churchmasters or to one, authorized by them.
- III The seats of those who die, shall revert to the church; but under condition that the churchmasters shall sell those seats for two shillings to the next heir of the deceased, if that individual applies for them, within one year, and if he or she belongs to the church, as described in the 11nd Art. and under condition that such seat be one come down from the original builders of the church.
- IV Those, possessing no seats in the church, and desiring to have one, shall apply to the churchmasters for the purchase of one and shall make arrangements with them.
- V Those belonging to the congregation, as mentioned in Art. 11, and having no seats, shall apply to the churchmasters,* who will, for this first time, in a very reasonable manner, make arrangements about their seatings.

TREASURER 1914

THE HOLLAND SOCIETY OF NEW YORK

CONSTITUTION

ADOPTED APRIL 30, 1885.

AS AMENDED APRIL 6, 1911.

ARTICLE I.

Name.

SECTION I. This organization shall be called
THE HOLLAND SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

ARTICLE II.

Object.

The object of the Society shall be:

FIRST. To collect and preserve information respecting the early history and settlement of the City and State of New York by the Dutch, and to discover, collect, and preserve all still existing documents, etc., relating to their genealogy and history.

SECOND. To perpetuate the memory and foster and promote the principles and virtues of the Dutch ancestors of its members, and to promote social intercourse among the latter.

THIRD. To gather by degrees a library for the use of the Society, composed of all obtainable books, monographs, pamphlets, manuscripts, etc., relating to the Dutch in America.

FOURTH. To cause statedly to be prepared and read before the Society, papers, essays, etc., on questions in the history or genealogy of the Dutch in America.

FIFTH. To cause to be prepared and published when the requisite materials have been discovered and procured, collections for a memorial history of the Dutch

Dutch in America, wherein shall be particularly set forth the part belonging to that element in the growth and development of American character, institutions, and progress.

ARTICLE III.

Members.

SECTION I. No one shall be eligible as a member unless he be of full age, of respectable standing in society, of good moral character, and the descendant in the direct male line of a Dutchman who was a native or resident of New York or of the American colonies prior to the year 1675. This shall include those of other former nationalities who found in Holland a refuge or a home, and whose descendants in the male line came to this country as Dutch settlers, speaking Dutch as their native tongue. This shall also include descendants in the male line of Dutch settlers who were born within the limits of Dutch settlements, and the descendants in the male line of persons who possessed the right of Dutch citizenship within Dutch settlements in America, prior to the year 1675; also of any descendant in the direct male line of a Dutchman, one of whose descendants became a member of this Society prior to June 16, 1886.

So long as there are one thousand members of the Society no further elections to membership shall be held, but candidates for admission shall be placed in order upon a waiting list; provided, however, that this restriction shall not prevent the immediate election of any candidate who is the descendant of a present or former member of the Society.

ARTICLE IV.

Officers.

SECTION I. A President, Vice-Presidents as provided in the By-Laws, a Recording Secretary, a Corresponding Secretary and a Treasurer shall be chosen at each annual meeting and shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected. There shall also be chosen from its members twenty Trustees. Those elected at the first election shall divide themselves into four classes of five each; one class to hold office one year, the second class for two years, the third class for three years, and the fourth class for four years, next thereafter. At each annual meeting thereafter there shall be chosen five Trustees to fill the place of the class whose term will then expire. The offices of Secretary and Treasurer may be filled by one person.

If one who is not a Trustee should be elected President, Recording Secretary or Treasurer, he shall be ex-officio a member of the Board of Trustees during his term of office.

SECTION 2. All elections shall be by ballot, under the direction of inspectors, to be appointed by the President, and a plurality of votes shall elect.

ARTICLE V.

Powers and Duties of Officers.

SECTION 1. The President of the Society, and in his absence the Vice-President for New York County, shall authorize the call for all meetings of the Trustees, and of the Society, and appoint the place of each meeting, and shall exercise the usual functions of a presiding officer.

Vice-Presidents shall, as far as possible, keep in touch with the members resident in their several counties and stimulate their interest in the affairs of the Society. On the occasion of the death of any member, the Vice-President for the county in which such member has resided shall represent the Society and procure the necessary material for an appropriate memorial sketch to be inserted in the Year Book.

SECTION 2. The Recording Secretary shall make and keep a true record of all meetings of the Trustees, and of the Society, and of all Standing Committees; he shall also act as Librarian and Curator and shall have the custody of the Constitution and By-Laws, the Corporate

Corporate Seal, and all books, pamphlets, manuscripts and personal articles belonging to the Society.

The Corresponding Secretary shall notify each Trustee of all meetings of the Trustees, and each member of all meetings of the Society; issue all other authorized notices to members, distribute all books, pamphlets, souvenirs and other matter, authorized by the Trustees, and conduct the correspondence of the Society.

SECTION 3. The Treasurer shall collect, and under the direction of the Trustees disburse, the funds of the Society, and shall keep regular accounts thereof, which shall be subject to the examination of the President and Trustees. He shall submit a statement thereof to the Trustees at each regular meeting.

SECTION 4. The Trustees shall have general charge of the affairs, funds, and property of the Society. It shall be their duty to carry out the objects and purposes thereof; and to this end may exercise all the powers of the Society, subject to the Constitution, and to such action as the Society may take at its special or stated meetings.

SECTION 5. The Trustees shall have power to fill any vacancy which may occur from death or resignation among the officers of the Society, for the unexpired term of office vacated. Absence from three consecutive stated meetings of the trustees, without satisfactory explanation or excuse, shall be deemed equivalent to resignation and may be acted upon accordingly.

SECTION 6. The Trustees shall cause to be prepared annually a detailed statement of the financial condition of the Society, showing its receipts and expenditures for the current year, the number of members, and other matters of general interest to the Society, and a statement thereof shall be printed and a copy sent to each member ten days previous to the annual meeting.

SECTION 7. The Trustees shall, from time to time, make by-laws, rules and regulations, and appoint standing

standing committees and sub-committees on matters not herein determined.

ARTICLE VI.

Membership.

SECTION 1. Candidates for admission must be proposed by one member and seconded by another, and the member proposing a candidate shall state in writing the name of the person proposed, his occupation, place of residence, and his qualifications for membership.

SECTION 2. The name of every candidate, with those of his proposers, shall be sent to the Corresponding Secretary at least fifteen days, and by him sent to each Trustee at least ten days, before he is balloted for. Members shall be chosen by the Trustees, and no candidate for membership shall be elected unless he receive an affirmative vote of four-fifths of the Trustees present, and in every instance two blackballs shall exclude.

SECTION 3. Any Trustee may, at the same meeting, move the reconsideration of a vote, either of admission or exclusion; but after an adjournment no rejected candidate shall be eligible for six months thereafter.

SECTION 4. The admission fee shall be five dollars. The annual dues shall be five dollars, payable in advance on the first day of February in each year, or, in the case of newly elected members, upon notice of election. By the payment of ninety-five dollars at one time a member not in arrears may exempt himself from further payment of annual dues. The Trustees shall have power to increase each of said amounts from time to time, but not to a sum greater than one hundred dollars for the admission fee, and ten dollars for the annual subscription.

SECTION 5. Every person elected to membership, as a condition thereof, shall, within thirty days after being notified, pay to the Treasurer the amount of the admission admission fee and sign the Constitution; the Trustees may extend the time for the latter in special cases.

SECTION 6. Should any member neglect to pay his annual subscription within six months of the time when it is due, his name shall be dropped from the roll of the Society, unless for any good and sufficient excuse the Trustees shall vote to remit or suspend such penalty.

SECTION 7. The Trustees shall have power, by a vote of a majority of its members, to suspend or forfeit the membership of any member of the Society for conduct on his part likely, in the opinion of the Trustees, to endanger the welfare, interest, or character of the Society, an opportunity being first given such member to be heard before the Trustees in his defence.

SECTION 8. Any person who shall cease to be a member of the Society shall forfeit all right or interest in the property of the Society.

ARTICLE VII.

Meetings.

SECTION 1. The annual meeting of the Society shall be held on April 6th, the anniversary of the day when, in A.D. 1566, the Dutch combined against tyranny and adopted the badge which is now the badge of this Society. Should such date fall on Saturday or Sunday, the annual meeting shall be held on the Monday following.

SECTION 2. No special meeting of the Society shall be called at any time except by order of the President, with the approval of three Trustees, or by the Corresponding Secretary whenever the President shall be thereunto requested in writing by twelve members, setting forth the purpose of such meeting. At any such special meeting no business other than that specified in the call shall be considered, except by unanimous consent. At least ten days' notice shall be given to the members of all meetings of the Society.

SECTION

SECTION 3. The Trustees shall hold four regular meetings each year at such times as may be provided in the By-Laws.

ARTICLE VIII.

Notices.

SECTION 1. All notices shall be sent to such address as shall be left with the Corresponding Secretary. If no address be so given, such notices shall be sufficient if addressed to the member at his last known place of residence.

ARTICLE IX.

Amendments to the Constitution.

SECTION 1. To amend the Constitution, an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members present at a general or special meeting shall be requisite, but no amendment shall be made except upon the recommendation of the Board of Trustees, or upon the written request of at least fifteen members of the Society, and after the mailing to each member notice of any proposed amendment at least ten days before the meeting at which it is intended to be acted upon.

BY-LAWS OF THE HOLLAND SOCIETY

AS AMENDED MARCH 12, 1914.

1. ORDER OF BUSINESS.

At all meetings of the Society, the order of business shall be as follows:

1. Reading the minutes of the previous meeting.
2. Reports of officers.
3. Election of officers.
4. Reports of committees.
5. Miscellaneous business.
6. Adjournment.

2. MEETINGS OF TRUSTEES.

The Trustees shall hold stated meetings on the second Thursday of each March, June, October and December.

Special meetings of the Trustees may be called by order of the President, or, in his absence, by the Vice-President for New York County.

3. PROOF OF DESCENT.

Before being voted upon for membership, each candidate shall furnish satisfactory proof of his pedigree to the Committee on Genealogy, who shall report thereon to the Board of Trustees.

4. ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Society shall be held on the day specified in the Constitution (at such place and hour as the President shall appoint), and at least ten days' notice of the same shall be sent to each member by the Corresponding Secretary.

5. NOMINATING COMMITTEE.

The Trustees shall, at least sixty days before any annual meeting, elect a committee who shall nominate a ticket

a ticket to be voted for at the annual election, and a list of the nominations shall be sent to each member of the Society at least ten days before the annual meeting. The Vice-Presidents shall be promptly notified of the election of the Nominating Committee and requested to obtain suggestions of the names, desired by the members of each locality for nomination as Vice-Presidents, and to forward same to the Recording Secretary.

6. COMMITTEES AND APPOINTMENT.

All standing committees and sub-committees shall be appointed by the President or other chairman of the meeting, unless specially named in the resolution creating the committee, and the gentleman first named shall be Chairman of each committee. The standing committees shall be on Finance, on Genealogy, and on History and Tradition.

7. COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

The Committee on Finance shall consist of three members, and shall, at least once in each year, and oftener if they choose, audit the accounts and vouchers of the Treasurer of this Society and report upon the same at the annual meeting of the Society, and oftener to the Board of Trustees as they may see fit, or as the latter may order.

8. COMMITTEE ON GENEALOGY.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Genealogy to report to the Trustees upon the genealogy of candidates that may be submitted to them, and to collect and preserve, in accordance with the Constitution of this Society, information and documents relating to the genealogy of the members of this Society and of the Dutch settlers of New York and of the American colonies, and said committee may expend the funds of this Society for that purpose, but not to exceed a total amount of twenty-five dollars in any one quarter of a year, unless especially authorized by the Trustees. Said committee shall consist of three members.

9. COMMITTEE

9. COMMITTEE ON HISTORY AND TRADITION.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on History and Tradition to collect and preserve, in accordance with the Constitution of this Society, information, documents, books, and monuments relating to the history and tradition of the ancestry of the members of this Society, and of the Dutch settlers of New York and of the American colonies, and to print and publish the same, and papers and essays relating to the same, copyrighting original publications for the benefit of this Society; and said committee may expend the funds of this Society for that purpose, but not to exceed a total amount of one hundred dollars in any one quarter of a year, unless especially authorized by the Trustees. Said committee shall consist of three members.

10. SPECIAL APPROPRIATION OF FUNDS.

A. All initiation fees received for this Society, together with ten per cent. of the amounts annually received for dues of this Society, shall be, and they hereby are, appropriated for a special fund, which, with such gifts and additions as may be made thereto, is hereby set apart as the building fund, to be applied to the erection of a suitable, and if possible a self-supporting building, as the future home of this Society; but such fund, or parts thereof may, from time to time, be otherwise appropriated by the Board of Trustees.

B. Ten per cent. of the amount annually received for dues of this Society shall be, and they hereby are, appropriated to a special fund, which, with such gifts and additions as may be made thereto, is hereby set apart as a fund to be applied to the publication, in accordance with the Constitution of this Society, of a memorial history of the Dutch in America, such history to be copyrighted for the benefit of this Society, and to be prepared and published under the direction of the Committee on History and Tradition; but such fund, or parts thereof, may, from time to time, be otherwise appropriated by the Board of Trustees.

11. CENTERS

II. CENTERS ENTITLED TO A VICE-PRESIDENT.

Any county in which there may be ten resident members of the Society shall be entitled to a Vice-President in the Society. There may be also a Vice-President for the United States Army and one for the United States Navy. The Trustees may elect temporary Vice-Presidents for other localities, appropriately delimited and containing ten members or more, and may recommend the election of regular Vice-Presidents for these localities at the next annual meeting.

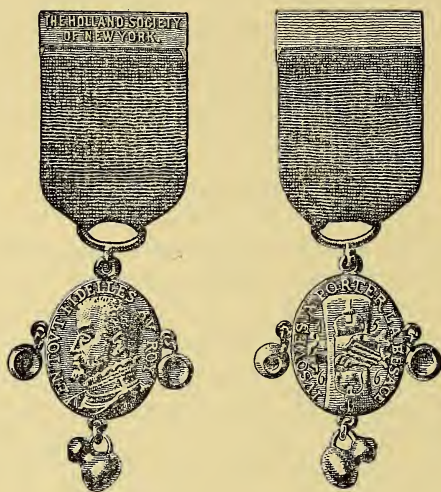

12. AMENDMENT.

These By-Laws can be altered, amended, or abrogated only at a stated meeting of the Trustees, or at a meeting specially called for that purpose, and upon a notice of ten days to each Trustee by the Corresponding Secretary, informing him of the proposed alteration, amendment, or abrogation, and then only upon the affirmative vote of a majority of members present. Provided, however, that each meeting may regulate and control its order of business.

BADGE OF
THE HOLLAND SOCIETY OF NEW YORK

ADOPTED MARCH 30, 1887

THE most significant medal, from an historical point of view, which was ever struck in Holland, is the so-called "Beggars' Medal." It is the memorial of the very first steps of that march toward civil and religious liberty in which the men of the Netherlands, after heroic struggles, finally led the world. And, therefore, it is a most appropriate token for us to wear, who have received in largest measure, in this New Republic, the benefits of the noble conflict of our Dutch forefathers.

In Bizot's Medallic History of the Republic of Holland, published at Amsterdam in 1690, the place of honor is given to this famous "Geuzenpenning." The following description of its origin is translated from that work, with a few additions from the accounts given by Prof. J. W. Kitchin, of Oxford.

"In the year 1565, immediately after the decrees of the Council of Trent were promulgated, Philip II. determined to put them in force throughout his dominions. Accordingly, he now made a more vehement attack upon the reformers; and then it was, in 1566, that the Netherland nobles, led by Count Brederode, signed the famous 'Compromise,' with which the open rebellion of the provinces begins. Margaret of Parma was Philip's regent in the Low Countries. Before her Brederode appeared with the Protest against the Inquisition and other innovations which the King proposed to introduce into Holland. He was accompanied by three hundred noblemen, who had bound themselves together for the preservation of the Liberties of the Provinces. The Duchess of Parma appeared to be much disturbed at the sight of such a multitude of noble remonstrants, but the Count of Barlemont, who stood beside her, begged her not to be alarmed, 'For,' said he, in French, 'they are only beggars.'

"The next day, the 6th of April, 1566, as the confederates were sitting together at dinner, and talking of a name for their new party, they remembered Barlemont's sneer, and cried out, 'Vivent les Gueux!' — 'Hurrah for the Beggars!' When dinner was over, Brederode, having hung a beggar's wallet around his neck, filled a wooden bowl with wine and drank the health of the company, declaring that, for his part, he was ready to sacrifice life, property, everything, in defence of his country's freedom. The room rang with applause,—'Hurrah for the Beggars!' The cup was passed from hand to hand. Every man drank the same toast and made the same pledge of devotion. And thus it was that the name of the Gueux, or Beggars, which has become famous throughout Europe, had its origin at a social feast; for it often happens that the most important and serious affairs begin amid jests and laughter.

"Soon afterward the men of the new Party appeared at Brussels, dressed in coarse gray cloth, with wooden cups attached to their belts, AND WITH THIS MEDAL HANGING ABOUT THEIR NECKS."

One of these medals was worn by William of Orange at the time of his assassination.

The following is the description, translated by the first Secretary of the Society, Mr. Geo. W. Van Siclen, from Van Loon's Nederlandsche Penningen.

"The

“The nobles assembled several times in different places to find methods to protect the liberties of their country from the perils which menaced them from all sides. Those who showed themselves most zealous and most ardent upon these occasions were Henry of Brederode; Louis of Nassau, brother of the Prince of Orange; Florent of Pallant, Count of Culemburg; and William, Count of Bergen. They pushed the affair so far that meetings were held, first at Breda, and afterward at Hoogstraten.

“At the latter place several discontented nobles projected an alliance, which, going from hand to hand, was in a short time accepted and signed by more than four hundred persons, all of whom promised to be in Brussels on a certain day. To give greater éclat to this league, Henry of Brederode, as chief of the confederates, found it convenient to make his entry into that city on the 3d of April, A. D. 1566, accompanied by Count Louis of Nassau and many nobles, followed by a great number of servants. The fourth day of that month was employed in preparations and in awaiting the Counts of Bergen and of Culemburg. Although on the following day these lords had not yet arrived, the confederates did not delay in demanding an audience. It was granted to them, and the Princess-Regent appointed the hour of noon to avoid the tumultuous concourse of the populace.

“The time named being near, Brederode and Count Louis were seen to leave the residence of Culemburg and to walk with a decent gravity toward the court, preceded by more than three hundred gentlemen, of whom they themselves formed the last rank. When they arrived before the Duchess, Brederode spoke for all, and, having finished his harangue, he presented to Her Highness a petition signed in the name of all that illustrious troop. In this petition, after having represented their obedience and their fidelity to the King, they declared that, notwithstanding the hatred that their procedure would very likely draw upon them, they would risk, in the service of the King, showing to Her Highness the dangerous condition of affairs, and warning her, if the protection of the Inquisition were continued, continued, of the terrible consequences which they foresaw would shake the State to its foundations. They demanded, secondly, that the edict of the King relating to the Inquisition, and relating to religion in general, be reformed by the Assembly of the States-General, and that, while awaiting this, the execution of this edict should be suspended, as a protection against the sad evils of which it was already, and of which it would be more and more, the fertile source.

"The Regent, hiding as well as possible the uneasiness and indignation which this affair caused her, received the petition, and replied to the supplicants that she would examine into their demands with the Lords of the Council, and that in a short time she would let them know her decision. With this response, the confederate lords returned to Culemburg's residence in the same order and with the same gravity with which they had left it.

"After the Regent had deliberated on the petition of the nobles, that Princess replied the following day in writing that she would represent to the King their first demand in the most favorable manner possible, but that she was obliged to refuse absolutely the second, because the matter was not in her power.

"While this affair was thus treated at the palace of the Princess, the populace insulted the confederate nobles by the opprobrious epithet of Gueux, which those who understood French badly changed into Geuzen, which afterward became very common as the name of a party or sect. Others say that the author of the sobriquet was the Baron of Barlemont, who, seeing the Regent surprised at the sight of so many nobles, tried to encourage her by saying, 'Ce ne sont que des gueux.' However that may be, this name was received by the nobles as a precious epithet, and soon became the most honorable title of that illustrious league.

"The 6th of April, Brederode, being at dinner with other lords of his party at Culemburg's, put around his neck a wallet, and filling with wine a wooden cup, like that worn by the beggars, made all the guests follow his example. He declared to them at the same time that,

that, while always remaining faithful to his King, not only would he risk everything in defence of the liberties of the country, although he might be reduced to carrying a wallet, but he was even ready to give up his life in so good a cause. All those who were at the feast, having in turn taken the wallet and the cup, made the same declaration one after the other, in the midst of a continual cry of 'Vivent les Gueux!'

"Several of these nobles appeared the next day in the streets dressed in gray frieze, and carrying at the girdle, as a badge of honor, a small wallet and a little wooden cup or calabash.

"Then (A.D. 1566), as now (A.D. 1732), the wooden bowl was in Brabant, like the wallet, a distinctive mark, and, so to speak, a livery of beggars. Furnished with this necessary utensil of their profession, they went certain days of the week to the cloisters, where, after having taken part in the catechising, they each received, according as he had answered well or badly, a portion of soup left over by the monks.

"It was by this low and despised method that the Professor, Thomas Stapleton, was able to reach the highest degree of erudition, notwithstanding his poverty and low birth. Sure, thanks to his porringer, of victuals which were absolutely necessary to him, he applied himself first to the languages, and afterwards to the higher sciences, with such success that he was honored with the most distinguished professorship in the University of Louvain. He never forgot his porringer. In the feasts which they gave when he was elevated to this important charge, not only did he then cause the first toast to be drunk in that cup, then ornamented with a foot of silver, but he desired that after his death it should be added to the rich ornaments of his marble tomb, as an example and as a beacon for other distinguished men of genius, the meanness of whose extraction might seem to condemn them to darkness.

"The reader must pardon me this digression, which I would not have made but from the same motive which caused this great man to parade his beggar's bowl.

"The gourd or bottle had its origin from the usage made of it by the pilgrims—that class of people who, to perform a penance or to fulfil certain vows, undertake a journey to the distant shrine of some saint, like that of St. James in Spain or of Loretto in Italy. They are obliged to go there begging by the way, and they carry this bottle-gourd, or calabash, attached to the girdle, for the purpose of carrying water for their use when they have to traverse dry and arid parts of the country. For this reason these allied nobles made use both of the porringer and the wallet as an emblem of poverty, and to turn into pleasantry the name of beggars, which had been given to them with so much indignity. This is not all. These lords, wishing to engrave on each other's memory the vow which each had made to defend the privileges of the country, even to carry the wallet, took pride in wearing on the breast certain medals attached to ribbons, and very often joined with a porringer and a gourd."

The form adopted by The Holland Society is a facsimile of the one to which are attached two such porringers and a gourd or bottle, and shows on its face the armed bust of Philip II. of Spain, with the first half of the motto, "EN TOUT FIDELLES AU ROY," and on the reverse two wallets, between the straps of which are two hands joined, with the remainder of the motto, "JUSQUES A PORTER LA BESACE," together with the date, 1566, the figures of which are, however, separated, one in each corner formed by the crossed hands and wallets.

Plaster casts of originals of various sizes, in the Musuem of Antiquities in Amsterdam, were kindly presented to the Society by Dr. T. H. Blom Coster, physician to the Queen of the Netherlands.

The die, which has been cut by Tiffany & Co., is the property of the Society. The medals, including the cups, the flagon, the orange ribbon, and the pin, can be furnished in silver for six dollars ($6) each. They can also be supplied in gold for twenty-eight dollars ($28) each. Members can obtain orders from the Secretary and therewith be furnished with the Badge by addressing Tiffany & Co.

THE

THE SOCIETY BUTTON

At the annual meeting of the society, April 6, 1897, the society adopted a button, to be worn on occasions when the wearing of the other insignia might be deemed inappropriate.

This consists of a shield of gold one-half inch high bearing the Lion of Holland in red enamel. Members can obtain them of the Bailey, Banks & Biddle Co., corner of Chestnut and 12th Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., in silver gilt at one dollar each, or in 14 k. gold at two dollars and seventy-five cents each.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL DINNER OF THE POUGHKEEPSIE MEMBERS

ON Saturday evening, October 3, 1914, the Twenty-fifth Annual Dinner of the Poughkeepsie District Members of The Holland Society, in commemoration of the Relief of the Siege of Leyden, was held as usual at the Nelson House.

The members who gathered around the table were: John E. Adriance, Peter Adriance, Wm. A. Adriance, Hon. Frank Hasbrouck, Martin Heermance, Dr. J. W. Poucher, Jesse Elting, Jacob Elting, A. B. Du Bois, E. Covert Hulst, David B. Sleight, Peter R. Sleight and I. Reynolds Adriance, the Vice President for Dutchess County, who presided. Recording Secretary Van Winkle and Corresponding Secretary Spoor came up from New York especially for the occasion and were present as the guests of the evening.

Letters of regret were read from President Brower and Treasurer Van Brunt, and a telegram from Irving Elting, former Vice President, conveying greetings and regrets at his inability to be present.

The dinner was enjoyed by all and the Hutspot was pronounced most excellent. In fact, so heartily was it partaken of by the majority of the party that a decided inability was developed to assimilate the Dutchess County

County Chicken, a part of the remainder of the viands on the Menu.

After the cigars were lighted the attention of the members was called to the fact that the nominations for Vice President of The Holland Society of New York from Dutchess County were in order, and upon motion of Judge Hasbrouck, which was duly seconded and carried, the present incumbent, I. Reynolds Adriance, was named for another term, and the Recording Secretary was requested to so advise the Nominating Committee.

Mr. Van Winkle and Mr. Spoor were then called on in turn for remarks which were listened to with much interest. The delayed Year Books were a part of Mr. Van Winkle's text, it being a subject on which he spoke feelingly. His discourse caused considerable comment by the speakers following, especially Judge Hasbrouck.

Judge Hasbrouck, Dr. Poucher, Martin Heermance, E. Covert Hulst and John E. Adriance were also called upon; Mr. Adriance read a letter from a German friend, giving the German point of view of the war, which proved to be very interesting.

Judge Hasbrouck in his remarks called attention to the fact that The Enterprise, a local evening paper, made a practice of publishing each day the events which happened ten, fifteen and twenty-five years ago, and that on this evening the fact was recorded that the local Holland Society held its Tenth Annual Dinner fifteen years ago, mentioning prominent members who have gone from us.

THE ELEVENTH INFORMAL MEETING

“ALL Work and No Play Makes Jack A Dull Boy” is a maxim the truthfulness of which has long been established. In 1903, the Trustees came to realize this fact and voted to hold the first informal meeting of the Society on December fifteenth of that year. This, happily, took the form of a Smoker and has been celebrated annually thereafter on the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. The Smoker has become so popular that in a short space of time the Society has outgrown two meeting rooms and, unless something is done to regulate the inviting of guests, larger quarters will have to be sought.

In a few, well-chosen words the Honorable Frank Hasbrouck, Past President of the Society, introduced Dr. William Eliot Griffis, Author of “Belgium, The Land of Art,” who gave a short talk—illustrated with lantern slides—on “The Walloons in the Netherlands and in America.” On account of the present hostile activities now going on in that country, the lecture was particularly interesting. Dr. Griffis said in part:

“In this time of sympathy with the Belgium of 1914, the martyred nation, now in desolation, the hearts and purses of the American people have responded generously to the calls of the needy.
Holland

Holland, also, is repeating the experiences of 1567, when hundreds of thousands of refugees from the southern or Belgic Netherlands sought shelter, food, and succor, on her welcoming soil.

"Our obligation to the Belgians is not one of humanity only. It is rather in the nature of a debt. It was the Walloons, or French-speaking people of the region south of Brussels, who first settled, that is, made homes, with women and children, in the central or empire region of the Atlantic coast in North America—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware. Moreover, while the new land discovered by the men of the Half Moon was, as a geographical entity, named New Netherland, as being territory acquired beyond sea, in America, the province, when made a colony and inhabited and recognized as a political organism, was called New Belgic Land. On the original seal of the province (Sigillum Novi Belgii),¹ on the incised granite of the new Hall of Records, on Manhattan, and in the official documents, one sees the arms of New Amsterdam beneath the beaver and three silver crosses and reads "Sigillum Amstelodamensis in Novo Belgio." Thus the ancient Belgic name lives on our soil.

"How splendidly shines in history the first mention of the people of Belgic Land, in whom Cæsar found foemen worthy of his steel! 'Omnium horum Belgii fortissimi sunt' (The bravest of all these are the Belgii), wrote the author of the immortal 'Commentaries.' We may well be proud that such men of principle and conscience, Bible readers and lovers of liberty, with experiences of persecution, hardships bravely faced and cheerfully borne, and whose story is as romantic as that of the Pilgrim Fathers, or the Huguenots, settled our central region.

"Draw a line east and west across Belgium at Brussels and, roughly speaking, all south of this line are Walloons, whose speech is French. Economically, for the most part, this southern country is a foundry, mine or factory. All north of Brussels is, roughly speaking, inhabited by Flemings, who speak Dutch

—not

—not the polished, modern speech of Leyden, but of an older form. This region is mostly a farm or garden area. Thus Belgium is manufacturing in the south and agricultural and maritime in the north.

“Phonetics help to explain the origin of the name Walloons. North of the Alps, W and G change easily. Compare Welf and Guelph, Guillaume and William, besides scores of other similar transmutations, which show us why the Gaul-loon becomes Walloon and the person so-called speaks French.

“Our ancestors of white cuticle were once savages like the tinted folk, knowing nothing of trousers, woven clothing or the refinements of civilized life. The Romans conquered our forbears with superior weapons and discipline, but it was the foreign missionaries from the south who won the Belgii to Christian faith, hope, and love. He who opposes or is indifferent to Christian propaganda, or foreign missions, is disloyal to all history, since no people were ever made a Christian nation, except by foreign missionaries. The saints which Belgian churches recall in their names or make effigies of in statuary are to us unknown by name and are otherwise obscure in America, but are locally household words, because the names or images recall the story of those devoted men and women who, long centuries ago, labored in the gospel on the soil.

“After Roman dominion fell, Charlemagne tried to reform all northern Europe, according to the only model he knew. Thus grew up the Holy Roman Empire. The fleeing remnants of the Teutonic tribes, driven by the great Charles out of the German forests, settled in the sandy levels of northern Belgic land and became the Fleemings or Flemings. Charlemagne was crowned at Rome on Christmas Day A. D. 800, and left one son. In 843 A. D., his three grandsons took the oath of peace and divided their grandfather's estate. The western part became France, the eastern Germany, while between, was a long strip from the Tiber to the English channel, in which lay Belgic land. Thus, set like a wedge between the eternal rivals, France and Germany, the Belgic territory was destined to be a battlefield of contending nations.

“After the crusades, an amazing era of industry made the Netherlands the richest portion of Europe. Charles V. could not understand the ideas of the Reformation and their meaning, but thousands of the southern Netherlands could and did, for they were the pioneers of a new world of thought. Philip II perceived the animus and bent of the new movements of mind, seeing that these meant prolonged opposition to absolutism in government and the enjoyment of religion apart from monopoly. When from Madrid the orders went forth for the threefold coercion of the Netherlanders into conformity, the establishment of the Inquisition and the laying of taxes without consent, the Walloons first, and then the Flemings and Dutch, revolted.

“Philip II listened to the war-makers and contractors, clerical and lay, who saw rich spoil ahead. In 1567, he sent Alva with his invincible army to the boggy and sandy land which human industry had made a garden and a mint. The Walloon country is not militarily defensible in any case and the Flemings were unprepared. The Eighty Years War and the ‘Troubles’ began. The result was that under a succession of able Spanish generals, the ‘pacification’ of the southern or Belgic Netherlands was completed by Parma. Then the country was placed under the rule of Philip’s daughter, the Infanta of Spain, while the Dutch Republic continued on its victorious career.

“When the seventeenth century opened there were arrayed, in startling contrast, the northern and the southern, or the Dutch and the Spanish Netherlands. The one nation represented the new world of printing presses, public schools, freedom in religion, economic reform and was the pioneer of what our civilization in the twentieth century holds most precious. The other was allied to ‘the China of Europe,’ reactionary Spain.

“Meanwhile,

"Meanwhile, a million people, Walloons and Flemings, mostly persons of ability or skilled artisans, fled to the four countries in the British Isles, to Germany, to Scandinavia, to Denmark; but, in overwhelming majority, into the Dutch Republic. Brave Little Holland, with but 800,000 inhabitants and four thousand square miles of dry land, was made great. Usselinx pumped out ponds and made new polders. Brains and wealth entered with the Walloons. Amsterdam rose on the ruins of Antwerp. Some of the finest regiments under the flag of twenty-one stripes—the orange, white and blue seven times repeated—were Walloons. The League of Seven States prospered mightily because of Walloon Immigration. England was transformed from a poor, agricultural to a rich, manufacturing country, because of the transfer of industry from continent to island. Spain steadily sunk toward sunset.

"These Walloons were Bible readers. They cared more for conscience and freedom than for comfort or pelf. One phase of the story of their struggle is told in Rev. D. F. Poujol's fascinating volume,¹ which tells of the strangers happy in their new home. At Leyden, at the Bibliotheque Wallonne, in the Pilgrim Father Alley, Klock Steeg, opposite St. Peter's mighty church, Americans descended from Walloons and seeking ancestral records, will find rich stores of knowledge. Card catalogues, giving clues or telling the story of these refugees for conscience sake—many of them settlers in New Netherland—with abundance of literary and illustrative accessories, may be found.

"It was in Leyden that Jesse de Forest,² from Avesnes in Hainault (but now in France), who may be called the real founder of the city on Manhattan, enrolled emigrants for settlement in the new Belgic land beyond the Atlantic. Perhaps it was in compliment, as it was in historic justice, to these Walloon loon pioneers, that the new province was named that of the Novi Belgii, or New Belgium. Not till the truce (1609-1621) expired could the States-General, in good faith to Spain, allow a colony on the continent of America, claimed by Philip II as his private property; but in 1623 the West India Company had ready a new, bright, clean ship, the New Netherland, of 260 tons burthen, Captain Cornelis Jacobsen May, commander. On this vessel were embarked thirty families, nearly all Walloons, bound for America. On board were the officers of religion and the church lay-preachers, called comforters of the sick. On Manhattan; at the Walloon's bight, or bocht, now the Wallabout in Brooklyn; on the site of Albany on the upper Hudson; these Walloon pioneers of our Middle States were settled. Four couples were married in the ship. These brides and grooms, embarking on a yacht from Manhattan sailed into the Delaware and made their home on the Jersey shore, not far from the site of the later Philadelphia. Thus the first home-makers in the four Middle States were Walloons and the first white child born in this empire region bore a Walloon name. To-day, thousands of our best citizens are, whether or not conscious of the fact, descended from these Walloons.

"In all probability, it was these Walloons of 1623 (for many more came later) who first brought over their favorite flower, the Marguerite daisy. What more appropriate state flower could be chosen for New York by the people of our Empire Commonwealth, than this beautiful blossom of the meadows?

"So numerous were these French-speaking settlers of New Netherland and so insistent upon their church privileges that all the first domines, or Dutch pastors, sent over by the West India Company, were expected and obliged to preach in French, as well as Dutch. If not as comfortably fluent in the speech of southern Belgic land as was most agreeable to speakers and hearers, they had recourse to the pen and wrote out their sermons.

"Some

“Some of the most prominent and honored of the early New Netherlanders were Walloons—not from France, but from the southern Netherlands—such as Peter Minuit, first governor, who had been also an elder in the Walloon church at Wesel, Germany; and Secretary de Rasieres, who visited Plymouth and the Pilgrims. Probably most of the New Netherlanders with the names bearing the prefix de or la, were of Walloon origin. Hundreds more from ancestral seats in the provinces of Hainault, Brabant, Namur, Liege, and Luxemburg alternated or translated their names into Dutch when in alien lands, yet they were from the Netherlands, not from France. No great immigration of French people to America took place until after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1683. Many Americans of Walloon ancestry imagine themselves of Huguenot descent. Yet the records of honor are equal in both strains of blood.

“The Walloons in America, as in Holland, were soon merged into the body social and politic, of which they were at first a notable part. In Holland, to-day, a few congregations of Walloons still worship God after the manner and speech of their fathers, but most of the older churches, as seen by the dates in Poujol’s conspectus, have become extinct. In the large cities of Queen Wilhelmina’s dominions, one may count up probably as many as fifteen Walloon churches still living and active.

“Of the gifts and graces of the Walloons, there is not here space to speak. Unless the writer, for twenty-five years a member and nine years a domine, or pastor, in the Reformed Church (at Schenectady, N. Y.) be mistaken in his impressions, the Walloons added a distinct and valuable element to the American composite. Merged and forgotten they may have been, but though invisible their contribution is none the less potent in our national life. Rather, like the flavor that distils aroma and adds piquancy, the Walloon sweetened the Dutch mass and to-day makes richer our national inheritance. The Holland Society of New York, among whose members are so many many of Belgic descent, should, with discrimination and appreciation, keep alive the memory of the Walloons."

In the absence of Evert Jansen Wendell, the Chairman of the Committee in charge of the Smoker program, the Recording Secretary acted as Master of Ceremonies and introduced the following artists: Rose Sampter, Soprano; Lawrence Sharkey, Story Teller; Haley & Bond, Musical Comedians; Wm. F. Cæsar, Accompanist.

As no meeting of the Society is complete without a word from our President, William Leverich Brower was called to the platform and responded in an informal manner, tendering his greetings to all the members present and expressing the Society's obligation to Dr. Griffis for his interesting and informing lecture on the Walloons and the Belgian country. He also brought the greetings to the Society of our Minister to the Netherlands, Henry Van Dyke, who had just arrived in America. The President stated that although a number of kindred societies were omitting their festivities on account of the sympathy with the desolation in Europe, the Trustees of The Holland Society, after giving full consideration to the matter, had decided that it would be better not to break the continuity, and therefore voted in favor of the Annual Dinner which is to be held on January 21st, 1915.

The President made an appeal for the stricken Belgian population and he stated that if any contributions were made through him, or any of the other Officers or Trustees, they would be sent to our Minister to the Netherlands, Henry Van Dyke, to be used at his personal discretion.

At the conclusion of his remarks President Brower read the following telegram from H. L. Van Winkle, Vice-President of the Pacific Coast:

"Edward Van Winkle, Recording Secretary
The Holland Society of New York
Hotel Astor, N. Y.

"Your invitation to the Annual Smoker received.
Am with you in spirit if not in person. If present and Every accommodation has been arranged for their comfort and we extend a cordial invitation to the hospitality of San Francisco.

H. L. VAN WINKLE."

The prepared program being concluded, the members were invited to entertain themselves for the rest of the evening; aided by the waiters, who served the following collation:

THE

THE THIRD ANNUAL DINNER OF THE HUDSON COUNTY MEMBERS

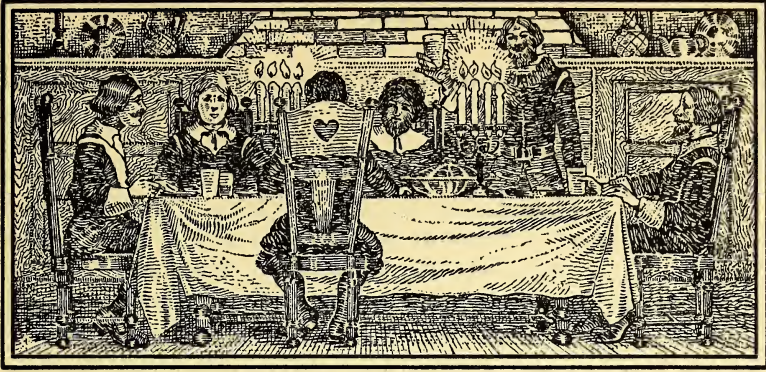

THE Third Annual Banquet of the Hudson County Branch of The Holland Society was held at the Jersey City Club, Jersey City, December, 8, 1914. A meeting was called to order by the President, Richard G. Sip. Reports were received from the different Committees. Three new members were elected. The election for President for the ensuing year being in order, it was announced that, according to the By-Laws of the Association, the election of President carried with it the nomination for Vice-President of the Parent Society. Nominations for that office were called for and the name of William Van Keuren was unanimously submitted. The Secretary being directed to cast the ballot, Mr. Van Keuren was declared to be elected President of the Association for the coming year. He accepted the office with thanks, and with appropriate remarks pledged himself to the loyal support of the Association and furtherance of its objects. Mr. Clarence G. Newkirk was unanimously reëlected Secretary and Treasurer. The meeting then adjourned and thirty-eight members were ushered into the Dining Hall, which had been handsomely and appropriately decorated under the direction of the very efficient Dinner Committee, by Brig. Gen. H. H. Brinkerhoff, Brinkerhoff, James S. Newkirk and Chas. M. Vreeland. A most appetizing Menu was presented which was greatly enjoyed. Excellent "post prandial" speeches were made by Hon. Wm. H. Speer and Hon. Robert Carey, both of the Hudson County Judiciary, who were happily introduced by General Brinkerhoff as Toastmaster. At the close, a standing vote of thanks was given to the Banquet Committee for their untiring and successful efforts for the entertainment of the Association. After the singing of "Old Lang Syne" the meeting adjourned filled anew with good old Dutch loyalty and enthusiasm. Among those present were: Gen. H. H. Brinkerhoff, Wm. Van Keuren, Graham Van Keuren, Daniel Van Winkle, Thomas E. Van Winkle, Charles M. Vreeland, Dr. Hamilton Vreeland, J. S. Newkirk, A. P. Newkirk, Harry M. Newkirk, Clarence G. Newkirk, Halsey V. Newkirk, J. Warren Vreeland, Nicholas G. Vreeland, Howard Vreeland, John Winner, Thomas A. Ryer, Nicholas D. Wortendyke, Dr. H. S. Bogardus, Geo. Van Blaricom, Richard J. Vreeland, Richard H. Brinkerhoff, Dr. C. P. Opdyke, Hon. Wm. H. Speer, Hon. Robert Carey and George C. Warrin, Jr.

THIRTIETH ANNUAL DINNER

THE Thirtieth Annual Dinner of The Holland Society was held in the Waldorf-Astoria on Thursday evening, January 21, 1915. The members and guests assembled in the Astor Gallery, where an informal reception took place and escorts were assigned to the representatives of the Societies invited as honorary guests. At the sound of the bugle the doors of the dining-room were thrown open to welcome those participating in this gay festival.

For the first time in years all of the boxes in the first balcony were occupied by the ladies, and representatives were present from The Society of Daughters of Holland Dames, Descendants of the Ancient and Honorable Families of New Netherland, and the Daughters of the Revolution—Bergen Chapter and Paulus Hook Chapter—both representative of the old town of Bergen, the history of which is chronicled in the Year Books 1913, 1914 and 1915.

Reverend Dr. Ernest M. Stires, Rector of St. Thomas's Church, New York, pronounced the blessing, as follows:

"God of our fathers, accept our heartfelt thanks for all our blessings; help us to have an increasing sense of our responsibilities and an increasing sense of thankfulness for all thy goodness to us."

The

The honored guests of the Society were grouped about the President, William Leverich Brower: Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, Rector of St. Thomas's Church; Professor William H. Carpenter, Provost of Columbia University; Honorable Isaac Franklin Russell, Chief Justice, Court of Special Sessions of the City of New York; Rear Admiral N. R. Usher, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Mr. De Lancey Nicoll, Vice-President of the St. Nicholas Society; A. van de Sande Bakhuyzen, Consul General of der Nederlanden; Mr. Louis Annin Ames, President of the Empire State Sons of the American Revolution; Mr. Robert Olyphant, President of the Sons of the Revolution; Mr. Charles W. Bowring, President of St. George's Society; Rev. John Williams, President of St. David's Society; Major Henry Gansevoort Sanford, Governor of the Society of Colonial Wars; Mr. William Sloane, President of St. Andrew's Society; Frederick C. Seabury, Governor of Society of Mayflower Decendants; William J. Clarke, Recording Secretary of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick; William Mitchell, Vice President of the Huguenot Society.

In front of the dais the following members and guests were seated at the tables:

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

BY WILLIAM LEVERICH BROWER¹

It is with the greatest pleasure that we welcome to our Thirtieth Annual Dinner the members of The Holland Society and their friends; our honored guests and the ladies.

The Society is to be congratulated on the completion of another successful year. The record indicates that we now have nine hundred and eighty-four members. We lost by death twenty-three members, among them the revered Henry Van Schaick, a charter member who passed away just after he had entered his ninetieth year.

The Annual Smoker of The Society was held at the Hotel Astor on the evening of November 24th with three hundred and twenty persons present. It was a very successful affair, the main feature being an illustrated lecture by Dr. Wm. Elliot Griffis on the "Walloons." The Walloons were Netherlanders, living in the southern provinces, driven out by the Spanish Invasion of 1567. Hundreds of our families have descended from the Walloons. Let us recall the fact, too, that the territory in which we now live was not at first termed New Netherlands, but Novum Belgica, that is New Belgium, and that the Walloons have as beautiful a story as the Huguenots. When we realize that these Walloons were French-speaking Netherlanders living in the country south of Brussels and were an industrious Bible-reading people and, defenceless, had to fly as exiles into Holland; that they brought the first women and children into this country, and that the first babies here were born of those Walloon people, we should honor and preserve their name in memory. Peter Minuit, himself, who arrived in 1626, was born, baptized and became an officer in the Walloon or French Church. He was the first Colonial Governor and first Elder of the Dutch Reformed Church, which was organized on this Island in 1628.

It

It will be of interest to you to learn that your President, a few weeks ago, enjoyed a visit to Madame Vandervelde, who is in this country soliciting aid for the Belgian people, and at that time tendered her an invitation to speak at this Dinner. We would be enjoying her gracious presence to-night, save for the fact that she is in the western part of our country engaged in her holy mission.

Our distinguished fellow-member, The Hon. Henry van Dyke, U. S. Minister to The Netherlands, was also invited to this Dinner. Had he been able to be here to-night we should have heard his wonderful story of the part he has been taking in helping to relieve the misery and woe of the "strangers within the gates" of Holland. This is his letter sent from the Legation of The United States of America at The Hague, dated January 8th, 1915:

"DEAR MR. BROWER:

Your letter of December 12th has just been forwarded to me from Princeton and I am very sorry indeed that it will be impossible for me to be in America on January 21st, as I am busier than ever here. Give my cordial regards to all my fellow members of the Holland Society, and tell them that we have good reason for increasing pride in the country from which our ancestors came.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) HENRY VAN DYKE."

The library of our Society is a very interesting institution, and is prepared to verify references, furnish abstracts, copies of reports and translations. It will furnish partial or complete genealogies covering the Dutch period of New Netherland, and where the original sources are not available to the client, furnish either the original, abstracts, copies or translations, as may be necessary.

As reported at the Annual Meeting in April, arrangements had been completed for the casting of the statue of William the Silent. The contracts for this work were drawn

drawn and were signed by your President a few days before the outbreak of the hostilities in Europe; on that account the contracts were not forwarded and still remain in the hands of your Committee; further progress in the matter is, of course, at present stayed.

A word about the Hutspot,¹ which we have enjoyed at this Dinner, and the relation it sustains to our American Thanksgiving Day, may be interesting and instructive. It is the inspiration for the American Thanksgiving. After the siege of Leyden in 1575, the inhabitants found the Hutspot in the abandoned camps of the Spanish soldiers. They appointed October 3rd of each year as their Thanksgiving Day to celebrate the raising of the siege, and Hutspot crowned their feasts. The Puritans, during their stay in Holland before coming to this country, witnessed many of these October 3rd celebrations, and decided, when they came here, to give thanks in the same way, but as they had no beef to cut up, or iron pots in which to cook the Hutspot, the wild turkeys were an appetizing substitute. The iron pots,² which you have as souvenirs at this Dinner, are the exact reproduction in miniature of the old Spanish pots in which the Hutspot was found.

This winter, owing to the depression caused by the appalling wars, which are being enacted on European soil, some of our kindred societies have omitted their usual functions. The Holland Society, while maintaining and expressing their profoundest sympathy for the world's woe, thinks it not inconsistent to continue to exercise the grace of hospitality, and so we are here to-night. ORANJE BOVEN.

(Applause.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: Our first toast is "Our Country and Its President." I will read this interesting letter, dated at the White House, Washington, December 26, 1914.

"MY DEAR MR. BROWER:

May I not express to you, and, through you, to my friends of the Holland Society, my very warm thanks for

for the very cordial invitation which you extend in your letter of December 24th. As I am in mourning I am not able to send you my acceptance, but I hope you will believe that I appreciate your kindness.

With best wishes for the success of your dinner, I am

Sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON."

Gentlemen, fill your glasses and we will drink to the health and prosperity of our country and its President.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: It is always customary at these dinners to remember our own beloved State; and the next toast is "The Empire State and the Governor." This letter was received from Governor-Elect Whitman, dated December 24, 1914, addressed to the President of The Holland Society:

"Dear Sir:

Governor-Elect Whitman has your kind invitation to attend the Thirtieth Annual Dinner of The Holland Society, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on January 21st.

While Mr. Whitman greatly appreciates your courtesy, he directs me to say that, owing to the press of public business, it will be impossible for him to accept any invitations for the next three months."

(Signed by his confidential secretary.)

So, we will drink to the continued prosperity of the Empire State, with our very best wishes for our Governor.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: The next toast in order is "New Amsterdam and the Mayor." It has always been our custom to invite the Mayor of the City to our dinners, and he was so invited this time, and this is his reply:

"The Mayor has delayed writing you in the hope that he may so arrange his engagements as to permit him to accept the kind invitation of The Holland Society Society to attend its Thirtieth Annual Dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria on January 21st; but he regrets that he has been unable to do so. He has another engagement for that evening which he cannot postpone, and therefore it will be impossible for him to be present at the Dinner of the Society. He asks me to tell you how sorry he is to be compelled to decline your invitation, and assures you of his appreciation of your courtesy."

(Signed by the Executive Secretary.)

Gentlemen, we will drink to the continued prosperity of our City and its efficient Mayor.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: We miss here to-night the genial presence of the Minister from the Netherlands. No dinner of The Holland Society seems quite complete without his presence. I will read his letter:

"Replying to your kind note of November 13th, inviting me to be a guest of The Holland Society of New York at your Thirtieth Annual Dinner which will be held on Thursday, January 21st, I beg to inform you that, after the pleasant experience of last year, it would have given me much pleasure to be again with you on this occasion, were it not that I have decided that on account of the terrible war raging quite so near our borders and indirectly affecting so much also my country, not to assist this year at any official or semi-official function.

I hope and trust you will understand and appreciate this reason of my abstaining, and accept with my best wishes for the illustrious Holland Society and its respected President the assurance of my best regards and high esteem."

(Signed by the CHEVALIER VAN RAPPARD.)

So, gentlemen, we will fill our glasses and drink to Her Gracious Majesty, Queen Wilhelmina and her beautiful country.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

MR. JOHN W. VROOMAN: Mr. President, I suggest to the members of the Society and to the ladies present
that that we give Her Gracious Majesty, Queen Wilhelmina, the Chautauqua salute—handkerchiefs out.

(The Chautauqua salute was given.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: We have with us this evening as one of our honored guests, the Provost of that ancient seat of learning of which every New Yorker is proud, Columbia University.

To-night, in order to get it in its historical perspective, I will call it by its ancient name, "King's College." One hundred and fifty years ago there was a prospect that the Dutch in New York would unite with King's College, but events did not turn out that way. They finally founded a seat of learning at New Brunswick, New Jersey, and called it Queen's College. That is now Rutgers College.

Our friend who is to address us has a fruitful theme in responding to the toast of "Holland, the Ofttimes Refuge of the Oppressed," since Holland has been the common refuge of the persecuted in all Europe. The Huguenots, Waldenses, Covenanters and Puritans, found a safe asylum on her hospitable shores. Listen to this tribute to the Dutch people; it appeared a few weeks ago in one of the large New York dailies; this is it,—mark well these words:

"Nothing finer has developed since the war began than the categorical refusal of Holland to accept aid for the Belgian refugees within her territory. The spirit behind the refusal is magnificent and revives a faith in modern civilization that is sadly battered.

"No less than one million Belgians have streamed across the border into Holland, most of them altogether indigent. The strain of taking care of them has been severe. Yet food and shelter have been found, and Holland's pride will not permit American wealth to help bear the burden of caring for the strangers within her gates. Elsewhere Christianity has broken down. In Holland it flourishes. If nations are judged on the day of final assessment, Holland surely has no reason to fear the finding.

"The Dutch are not rated a sentimental people. They are not given to verbal display. Their hearts are not on their sleeves. Visitors to their country sometimes complain of lack of social warmth. But behind a barrier of phlegm course streams of kindness. Who would not be proud to be a Dutchman,—a member of a people who have shown it is possible to possess military virtues and yet to avoid the sin of aggression,—who have faced the duty of opening their homes to the Belgians with the same calmness they displayed in opening their dikes to a foreign oppression? The beauty of the Dutch behavior is not lessened by the fact that the Dutch have not concealed in times past their general disapproval of Belgians and of Belgian ways.”
are

This toast will be responded to by one who officially represented Columbia University on the 300th anniversary of the old University of Groningen last July, at which time the Queen of the Netherlands received an honorary degree. I introduce to you Professor William H. Carpenter of Columbia University:

(Applause.)

*ADDRESS BY DR. WILLIAM H. CARPENTER¹, PROVOST OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY,
CITY OF NEW YORK*

DR. CARPENTER: Mr. Chairman, members of The Holland Society, and Ladies: I find my text is, in part at least, contained on the program, although I had naturally no part in placing it there. It says: “Yet are many of us further obliged by the good and courteous treatment which we found in your country, for which we and our children after us are bound to be thankful to your nation.” The Chairman has already made a part of my speech. But that, of course, in considering the characteristics of Holland, was a natural thing to do, because, when one thinks of Holland there comes into the mind, foremost of all, the supreme part that she has played in this matter of hospitality.

Holland, from the very earliest times, has been, more than almost any other nation of Europe, a refuge for the oppressed. It has come about in all periods of her national history. There are times, I suppose, in the earliest history of Holland, when she, like every other country on the map of Europe, had her times of oppression and of ignorance and of intolerance, both in politics and in religion; but, after the declaration of independence of Holland, after the dark time of the Spanish Succession had passed by and Holland really came out into the sun as a nation, it has been true of her that her doors have been open and her heart has been open to the oppressed of the nations of the earth. This has not happened at all for any reasons of self interest or of ultimate profit. It has occurred all the way down through her history because it has been a part of the nature of the Hollanders to open their hearts to those who have come to her borders, to warm them at her firesides, to feed them when they have been hungry and to clothe them when they have been naked. She has never picked or chosen; Jews and Gentiles, Catholics and Protestants, French and Germans have all knocked at her door in this way, and never in vain.

Holland was the first country in Europe to give a safe refuge to the Jews, those traditional children of persecution. And by and by she welcomed the French Catholics, the Jansenists and the Quietists, and took them in so that later on they played an important part in her national history. And, when that wave of persecution rolled over France, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and the Puritan Huguenots were driven out, it was in Holland that they found a home where they settled down and became a part of the community, as they did in no other part of the world; and later on still, when religious persecution drove out the Protestant Savoyards from France, and the Salzburg Catholics from Germany, these refugees from the intolerance of their own countries were welcomed in Holland and given a place, among her own people, in safety and freedom.

And now to-day, even at this very time, there is a louder knocking than ever before at Holland's door for hospitality. For over her borders have come a horde of despairing men and wild-eyed women and helpless children, driven out by the horrors of war,—driven out by fire and sword and the tramp of armed men from a country that is laid waste and devastated and bare, fleeing across her borders and only asking to live! And Holland, as never before, has opened her heart and her homes and her firesides to these refugees. (Applause.) All this has taxed her resources to the utmost. At the present moment Holland is almost submerged by this human wreckage of the flotsam and jetsam of war.

I have had many personal letters from Holland in these last days and weeks, and I have been able, I think, to understand partly the burden that has come upon Holland: a burden, however, which she is bearing without a question as to her attitude, without any thought whatsoever of a bounden duty, but merely taking it as a matter of course that when a stranger in need or in despair knocks at her gate, he shall be admitted and clothed and fed to the best of her ability.

From private letters received only a few days ago I was told that in a little Dutch town in the south of Holland of five thousand inhabitants, there are at this time fifty thousand of these refugees of war, who are sheltered as best they can be in houses and barns and sheds, and many of them are unsheltered in the open air. And so it goes; houses and public buildings all over Holland have been thrown open in this way.

A letter from the editor of one of the most prominent papers in Amsterdam says that in his own house at this time there are twenty-six men who have been taken in out of the ranks of the refugees; and other private houses in Amsterdam and all of the other cities of Holland have been filled full in this hospitable way by these wrecks of war. And "wreck" is the proper term to apply. For these people have come from all parts of a devastated land; from wrecked Louvain; from the cities and villages and the countryside of that devastated, despoiled, ravaged and lost country, they have come to the open arms of Holland, and Holland has responded, as she has always responded, heartily, warmly,

warmly, and as she will always respond, I am sure, to the end of her history. (Applause.)

These are hard times for Holland. She is placed in such a predicament as she has never been placed in before, for she, as all of us, has learned a lesson that neutrality is not a thing to be kept unless it can be enforced by arms. What will happen to Holland, of course, in this great cataclysm that has come over the world, we do not know. God grant that she may still live, however, to be the Holland of history, the Holland of the old-fashioned virtues, the Holland of peace and prosperity. (Applause.)

Inadvertently, I just said "old-fashioned." And it has always seemed to me that Holland is one of the most old-fashioned of the nations of Europe. I do not use this word in an invidious sense, because to be old-fashioned is by no manner of means either a personal or a national crime. I read a few days ago that modern progress is but an acceleration, and if we but stop to think, I am sure it will come to all of us that there is a great deal of truth in that definition, because, after all, with our great pace at the present time, we ultimately land in the end in most instances at the same old results. Holland is not unprogressive; she is in fact one of the most progressive of the nations, but she has taken her time to do it. As my experience with Dutchmen goes—and I have known a great many of them—I think that by and large and as a general proposition it is utterly impossible to accelerate the pace of a Dutchman. (Laughter and applause.)

I have been in Holland a great many times. I was there again this last summer, and I know Holland, I think, in almost every part, from Zeeland in the south to Friesland in the north, from the sand dunes on the western shore to those modest Dutch mountains in the region on the east that is sometimes jocosely spoken of as the Dutch Switzerland.

It is pleasant to recall the Dutch landscape—your Chairman has put the idea into my mind—the green "polders" that often stretch away to the horizon, with the comfortable Dutch cows grazing upon them; a line of trees along the dike and clustered about the little hamlets, and here and there a windmill and sometimes a group of them; and if you come nearer to the villages you will often see little summer houses and you will be able to read on the front of some of them what appears to be an extremely unfortunate acknowledgment of prevalent conditions, because, to an English-speaking person, it seems to say "Lust and Rust." Of course a Dutchman knows that "Lust" has no immoral significance whatever in this usage, and that "Rust" does not mean what a late President of the United States once called "innocuous desuetude." "Lust en Rust" is good Dutch and really only means "pleasure and rest."

And then most characteristic of all in that Dutch landscape that comes to my mind is the full-sailed ship coming along across the meadows—apparently across the meadows, but on an unseen waterway. I have journeyed in Holland on steamboats that progressed slowly; I have sailed on the Zuyder Zee, on what was called a "Snel Zeilende Botter," and that was actually much slower than the steamboats. I say all this merely to recall to you the conditions that are at hand in Holland. It seemed to me last summer, as I traveled over the country, that I had never seen Holland so prosperous, so peaceful and so happy. That is the whole characteristic of Holland, peace, prosperity and happiness. At Groningen, to which your Chairman has referred, where I was a delegate from my own University in America to the 300th celebration of the University of Groningen, when I saw that gracious young Queen—young she seems to me because I have seen her grow up from girlhood—standing before that great gathering of men from all the universities of Europe and of the world, and with an exquisite modesty respond to the honorary degree that had been conferred upon her, it seemed to me how happy was that people that had such a queen to love, and how happy must be the queen to have such people love her. (Applause.)

Times have changed, and we do not at this time know what may befall Holland. God grant that she may

may come out of the difficulties that beset her, because they are very real ones, still the Holland that we love, the Holland of history, the Holland of our heart's desire. (Applause.)

Holland, gentlemen, has taught the world some of its most important lessons, but I think it has taught the nations of the earth no lesson so satisfactory, so deep in its significance and so lasting in its effects as the old-fashioned virtue of hospitality, and of care for the oppressed.

The device on an ancient Coat-of-Arms of Holland is a lion battling with the waves. May she always subdue them! And may that other symbol of her nationality, the orange of her flag, which is the orange of your Society, never glow less brightly than it does to-day and here to-night! (Great applause.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: Our next toast will be "The Netherlands—Our Exemplar of Religious Liberty. The Uplift of Humanity."

As the founder of religious toleration which largely through the influence of Holland has developed into religious liberty, the peculiar glory of our own country, every American should revere the memory of William of Orange.

Listen to these reminiscences of early religious toleration and friendship on this Island of Manhattan; they are very curious and well worthy of your attention.

A letter of Domine Selyns, who was the minister of the Dutch Reformed Church in New York, dated October 28, 1682, says: "We and the English inhabitants use the same church. They perform their services at the conclusion of ours, by reading the Common Prayer." Again, under date of September 30th, 1696, he says: "For the two English churches in this city, which have been formed since our new church was built—one of our churches being in the fort and the other in the city—there are two Episcopal clergymen who, by arrangement, preach in our church after my morning and evening service, and live with us in all friendship."

The

The Rev. William Vesey, the first Rector of Trinity Church, was inducted into office on Christmas Day, 1697, in the Dutch Church in Garden Street; the Rev. Henricus Selyns, the minister of that Church, and the Rev. Johannes Petrus Nucella, minister of the Dutch Church at Kingston, New York, officiating on the occasion, having been requested to do so by the English Governor, Fletcher. The Rev. Mr. Vesey continued to officiate in the Garden Street Church, the Dutch and English congregations meeting at different hours, until the ensuing March, when the building of Trinity Church was completed.

In 1714, Trinity Church was entered, plundered and desecrated by some evil-disposed persons. "The Vestry offered a reward of thirty pounds for their detection. An immediate meeting of the Consistory of the Dutch church was held, and the spontaneous offer made by them of an additional reward of fifteen pounds for the like purpose."

This toast will be responded to by one who graces the ministry of that church which is a lineal descendant of the Church of England, and who has the blood of the Van Rensselaers running in his veins. I introduce to you the Rev. Ernest M. Stires, the Rector of St. Thomas's Church. (Applause.)

*ADDRESS BY THE REVEREND DOCTOR
ERNEST M. STIRES,¹ RECTOR OF ST. THOMAS'S CHURCH IN NEW YORK*

DR. STIRES: Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: I can quite understand the reverence with which many people speak of those who are described as "our old Dutch New York families." I feel, despite my proud claim to some Dutch ancestry, a degree of modesty, because my blood is not entirely Dutch, and my humility is altogether appropriate to such an occasion and to such a presence as this. I can understand, being born a Virginian, why Virginians are often accused, and perhaps with some justice, of being inordinately proud of being Virginians. You know, when there is something which you would like to be and cannot be completely, you have to blow your trumpet very loudly and enthusiastically for that which you are not able to claim altogether. And I am sure that this must explain the enthusiasm of Virginia societies and Ohio societies and various other societies which meet in this now historic room, an enthusiasm which doubtless is to some extent sincere, but is doubtless, to a great extent, intended to impress The Holland Society of New York City. Of course, it does not greatly impress it, and we know that you look with a good deal of generous amusement upon those who are doing the best they can under the circumstances.

I remember, some years ago, a certain college professor, at a dinner of the Mayflower Society in this city, to which I had the privilege of being invited—a certain college professor, in addressing that very distinguished gathering, confessed feelings such as I find myself experiencing at this moment. They say he is still a modest man, that college professor, in spite of the fact that he is now President of the United States. But, in the presence of the Mayflower Society, he spoke in low tones, with a due appreciation of the august lineage of those into whose important presence he had been invited. I happen to remember at this moment a story—and I have recalled it only at this moment, because I am understanding his feelings on that occasion—a story he told to the ladies and gentlemen of that society there assembled, as explaining his feelings. He said: “I remember once out in the country there came a circus, and in a sideshow of the circus, where all the people went after the regular performance was over, there was a most extraordinary man, who was accredited with such an amazing power of vision that he was able to read a newspaper placed behind a solid two-inch oak plank. Well, old John, a farmer, and his wife, could not credit any such statement, being mentally, at least, from Missouri. John determined to investigate, and, drawing his pocket knife, he stabbed the oak plank very vigorously, and discovering that it was exceedingly solid, he awaited developments. John produced a newspaper, stealthily examined its headlines, carefully held it close to the back of the board, when to his amazement, the man seemed able to read it without the slightest difficulty. Whereupon Maria, his wife, grabbed him by the arm and said, 'Now, John, you take me right home; this is no place for me with these thin things on.'" (Laughter and applause.)

Now, that is not my story, but at this moment, at any rate, I am able to appeal to good and sufficient authority for it. I sympathized with the President's feelings on that occasion; and my feelings on this occasion are markedly similar.

Now, having assured you, my friends, of the proper degree of modesty and appreciation of that which is fitting in such a presence, may I undertake just a little bit to answer a question which the eloquent and informing speaker who sat down a moment ago raised. He said times are changing and we cannot tell what changes may come to Holland in the near future. I am no prophet, but, if the independence and integrity of Holland are seriously threatened in the near future, the bravery of Belgium and the indignation of the world will be more completely surpassed by the courage of Holland and the fury of the world than anybody at this time could venture to believe possible.

It is said that once upon a time in Scotland two tramps attacked a Scotchman, and, after a few minutes the Scotchman, a small, wiry man, laid out these two huge, burly ruffians on the ground unconscious. He gazed at them with a suggestion of humor until finally they began to recover their senses; and the Scotchman said: "Don't ye think you took a lot of trouble for thripence? It was all I had." Whereupon one of the tramps said to the other: "Jack, if he had had a sixpence, he would have killed us." (Laughter and applause.)

We may not be prophets, but we can give disturbers good advice in a few words: they had better let Holland alone, not only because of Holland, but because of what

Holland

Holland means to the rest of the world, and because of what Holland means to Protestant Christianity the world over. (Great applause.)

I am glad to be able to have the time to say this, and I have the time because the last speaker quite properly revenged himself on the President having stolen his speech, by making use freely of mine, and if Judge Russell had arrived a little earlier I should, if possible, have retaliated by taking his.

May I say to you, however, what in my judgment is an inspiration which comes to me from Holland for what she has done for religious liberty, for what she has done as an uplifting and inspiring power in the world and in the development of human character. The explanation seems to me extremely simple: her people have, first of all, been people of intense religious faith. I think of Holland, centuries old as she is, as a nation forever young. No one can really think of Holland as old; she has always been young and she always will be. She seems to have so much of the spirit of the young Jacob, who, on the very threshold of life, and of the opportunities of that larger life into which he was going, when he was fleeing from the anger of his brother, conscious of the powers within himself, which he desired to develop in that larger life into which he was going, lay down at night to rest, with all his ambitions and all his longings surging within his mind and heart. And he dreamed, under those conditions, a natural dream, of angels ascending and descending—mark the order—not descending and ascending—the angels were here, and they came back here—his good angels, his higher ambitions, his larger longings for development and usefulness, and they were ascending, first, into the presence of the Most High, to ask God's blessing on his ambitions, to ask God to cleanse and purify his desires, that in all things he might be a good and helpful man in the larger life into which he was going. There is something so simple and rugged, so direct and effective, so intensely real in the faith of the Hollanders throughout all the generations of the past they have accepted so completely the authority of God, that the authority of any narrow, ecclesiastical body has had mighty little influence upon them. They have feared God so completely that they have never feared man at all. (Applause.)

And there I find the second quality; after their faith, that which is always inevitable in a man with real faith,—courage. They have wrested their country from King Neptune himself; they have taken it from the sea and have built up mighty barriers against the ocean, and they are there under conditions that men would, in an a priori way, think almost impossible. What have they not developed, both in their land and in human lives the world over? You can, in the history of no other nation, no other land, no other people, find anything which in any degree is comparable with that achievement. (Applause.)

Now, sir,—these other characteristics—after their faith and their courage, their virtue and their character—they see that that which is true and beautiful and good is in the last analysis identical. I think that is extremely true of the Hollander. He is so intensely true to himself that his nature rings true. There is no suggestion of deception, evasion or exaggeration in his words; he is a plain, straightforward, frank, candid-speaking man; he is a man of truth.

I suggested beauty. Why, people forget how much of beauty Holland has contributed to the world. When we think of Rubens, Van Dyck, and Rembrandt—Rembrandt, probably the greatest portrait painter who ever lived—when we realize what all the Dutch artists have given to the world, what visions of beauty they have beheld in earth and sea and sky and have revealed for generations to come,—some of the greatest painters, some of the greatest apostles in the temple of beauty the world has ever known Holland has given us.

And then what flowers! Why, there are no gardeners in the world like the Dutch gardeners. When you consider what they have contributed not only in these two branches of art but in nearly all the arts, it seems to me this claim for them is amply proved: they excel in truth and beauty and goodness.

And

And see where Holland stands to-day. That country and that people never made a more profound appeal to the world's admiration for faith, for courage, for character and for greatness of mind, heart and soul than they make to-day. It is a mistake to underestimate a quiet people. Even nations who make many diplomatic mistakes at times are not apt to repeat them in the case of brave little Holland. (Great applause.)

I remember, sir, some years ago, a patent medicine proprietor received this testimonial from a grateful patron. He said: "Dear Sir: I write to you with a thankful heart. My mother-in-law was at death's door; one bottle of your wonderful remedy pulled her through." (Laughter.) Now, personally, I think the mother-in-law joke is no longer wit, and I think that the mother-in-law has been the most abused person perhaps in all of our modern literature; but the point of the story lies in this: each speaker to-night has had assigned to him an impossible task. We cannot do justice to Holland. To take time to attempt it adequately might be to pull ourselves and you through that same door.

Gentlemen of The Holland Society, decendants of the bravest, truest, most dependable souls to be found in any nation on this earth, one cannot but wonder at times if you realize your great privileges and your great responsibilities. One cannot but wonder when you speak with reverent acknowledgment of what your forefathers meant to this country and have meant in its life, whether you realize to-day the character of the dangers that threaten our peace in the city, that threaten religion, that threaten at times the government, and that threaten at times the quality of our homes, and whether you realize how bravely and effectively in the past Holland has stood for God and for country and for home, and whether, in the spirit of your forefathers, you are thinking to-day, not so much with pride in being their descendants, as with the determination of being yourselves the ancestors of a still greater race of Hollanders here in this new world. The city has a right to expect it of you, brave sons of brave sires and mothers; and I am perfectly sure you will not fail; and it is because I am rich in having flowing in my veins some Dutch blood, that I may claim for a moment a common privilege with you in suggesting the appropriateness at this time of some lines that may apply to Holland.
will

“The bridegroom may forget the bride
Was made his wedded wife yestreen;
The monarch may forget the crown
That on his head an hour hath been;
The mother may forget the child
That smiles so sweetly at her knee,
But I’ll remember thee, dear land
And all that thou hast done for me.”

(Great applause.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: The next toast in order is “Dutch Justice Tempered with Mercy.” We have listened to messages from the University and the Clergy, and we are now to enjoy one from the Bench. This toast will be responded to by the illustrious Chief Justice of the Court of Special Sessions, the Hon. Isaac Franklin Russell.

*ADDRESS BY THE HONORABLE ISAAC
FRANKLIN RUSSELL,¹ CHIEF JUSTICE, COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS OF THE
CITY OF NEW YORK*

JUDGE RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: You can tell by looking at me that this is the proudest moment of my life. For some thirty odd years it has been an ambition which I have long cherished, to be invited to be a guest at the annual dinner of Speaker pauses, refers to the Menu and reads The Holland Society of New York (laughter); and now the dream of my life is realized; and I may say that my first thought is that I am glad to see so many out. Last Sunday I was at the New York

York County Penitentiary, and I was making some few observations of a religious character, and the first thing I said was, "I am glad to see so many out to-day." (Laughter.) But I couldn't get a rise out of that crowd. I have done my share for one-fifteenth of my court in the filling up of the vacant rooms at that penitentiary.

One privilege of the judiciary is in concurring, and I want to say to you in advance, lest you might think I did not contribute to the instruction of the evening, that I concur in all these good things that have been said about Holland, and I am very glad that my ancestors got away from that place. (Laughter.)

Of course, there is more fog there than there is in New York. I think New York has about the finest weather these later days, from September on, of any place in the whole world.

But I showed my courage by marrying into a Holland Dutch family, a regular descendant of old Van Dam, who not only had many virtues and went regularly to Sunday School, but had one of the best gin distilleries in the County of Kings. He maintained all of these ideas about lofty religious liberty about which much has been said, but not too much; and I want to say with as much enthusiasm as I can (for fear I will forget it) that, so far as Holland's influence goes, I can say the same thing for law, as my friend, Dr. Stires, has said about religion. International law a year ago was regarded as the greatest product of the human mind, based on the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God. It was the hope of the nations, and one of the greatest messages of the prophets that ever was delivered. It came from old Hugo de Groot, who, with his successors, many of them from the Low Countries, laid the broad foundations of that noble structure of world-wide ethical jurisdiction. If I have been a fair student of constitutional liberty in this and other countries, and have explored with any success the foundations of American liberty in the United States, to ascertain where the great principles that we find in the "Declaration of Independence" originated, and in the historic document called

called the "Reasons for Taking up Arms," where these came from,—I say that they came from those old Dutchmen in Holland, who loved political liberty and civil liberty as much as they did the right to say their prayers. They wanted to pay the right amount of taxes and they wanted the protection of the court and the law as much as they wished to enjoy their other privileges of religious liberty.

But I don't think a man can live forever on his ancestry. Napoleon said a man had to be his own ancestor. I tried to live on my ancestry for a while; I tried to borrow money on it, but I couldn't get it from the Jews; I couldn't get them to believe that I was any better on account of this ancestry.

I am really a professor; and, to tell the truth, I have been at it for a long while; and I say it to the glory of a large number of my students that they have survived my instruction. I stumbled across a United States Senator in Washington a month ago and a Governor, too, at Albany;—and when I see Whitman and O'Gorman and other such men who sat at my feet as students I feel that I have added at least a cubit to my stature.

I got on the job of educator very early. I left New Haven in 1880, and went to Queens County, Long Island, where I lived for several years and where I knew Garret J. Garretson, a Justice of the Supreme Court now at this dinner, who was then very distinguished as a lawyer. My father was a poor Methodist preacher at Rockaway, where they gave him $400 a year and all the clams he could dig; and, of course, I had, to a certain extent, to support myself.

I saw a sign out in a school district to the effect that they wanted a new teacher, and I went and presented my credentials; they were to pay $600 a year. That seemed to me a fortune. They asked me "What are your qualifications?" I said, "My name is Russell; I am a man of distinction; we are descended from Edward the Third, King of England, and we have three peerages in the House of Lords; my mother was the daughter of a Dutch farmer here who went to Congress from

from this county; I am a man of family, and of pedigree and am worth the money." I never can forget his reply. The old squire said: "See here, young man, we don't care nothing about your family we don't care nothing about your pedigree, and one thing more, we want you to understand distinctly, we don't want you in this here town for breeding purposes." (Great laughter and applause.)

I think no greater distinction can come to anybody than to be a professor of law, a professor of constitutional law, or whatever remains of the Constitution in these days after the courts have gotten through with it, and after Delancey Nicoll and other great advocates have had the rights of their clients adjudicated. (Laughter.)

Mention can be made in this connection of our distinguished and most illustrious citizen, and at the same time servant of all and the chief of all our servants, the man in the White House, a man I honor and who honors us and my profession by being a professor of law.

Then, too, there is my last surviving professor, Baldwin of Yale, who was for four years Governor of Connecticut; and Hughes, the one supreme model of the perfect Governor, the great statesman who was put out of business by Billy Barnes and who found a refuge on an island, according to Mr. Roosevelt; and then, do you know there is Cleveland, and Harrison. I tell you it is one of the toughest problems yet to know what to do with our ex-presidents. Don't think we are through with them because we are not. Cleveland went to Princeton and lectured on the Constitution, and Harrison lectured on the Constitution at Leland Stanford. I remember reading these lectures myself; they were printed in serial form in The Ladies' Home Journal. I used to love to read The Ladies' Home Journal. I was fond of what Ruth Ashmore used to say about how to eat a club sandwich at the Waldorf, and whether it was right for a girl who was out alone with a man to take his arm on a Sunday night when they were walking through a little bit of woods. She said that it would be all right so long as you keep on walking. Finally it was all published in book form. (Great laughter.)

And then there is Bill Taft; I call him that because there is one link that shall bind us ever. Years ago we were schoolmates at old Yale—that is why I call him “Big Bill.” He has added glory to ancestral fame by becoming Professor of Constitutional Law and expounding the institutions of liberty and free government at a great university where he and his father had already accumulated many honors. He is one of the biggest professors we have, a very cultivated gentleman and a man of perfect manners. I spent a week at New Haven at the last commencement and I met him, I don’t know how often, and always with great pride on my part. I was riding with him on a trolley car once, and an Italian girl came in with a baby, and I jumped up and gave her my seat; whereupon Professor Taft, not to be beaten by a man coming from such a section as New York, jumped up and gave his seat to three girls. (Laughter.)

Of course, it is a good thing to be a judge in New York. A Bishop can punish a man by binding him in the chains of anathema, but that begins at the day of judgment. That is quite different from the judge’s way. When the judge says “One year in the penitentiary and $500 fine,” that is business. (Laughter.)

Wherever you are lined up, at any place of great hospitality, some fellow will slap you on the back and say, “Have one on me, Judge.” Of course, we hate to be reminded of our unfinished tasks and the briefs we haven’t read or looked into and the cases on appeal full of interesting matter that we are supposed to study. No judge likes to be addressed in any formal way in the evening, because the bar closes at five o’clock, and the members of the Bench go home.

I was in to see our Mayor of sainted memory, now with God, just a little before he died,—Gaynor. I asked for more money to run my court. I had just got the heels of my shoes straightened up, and it was a little slippery on the City Hall steps, and my two feet went

went out from under me; and I fell, coming down those five steps of the City Hall, thump, thump, thump, thump. A kind friend picked me up, and what do you suppose he said to me? He said to me: "Is your Honor hurt?" "Why—" says I—"no, my honor, thank God, is secure, only my back bone is badly bruised." (Laughter.)

Now, it is surely a nice thing to be a judge like Judge Garretson, the gentleman I see directly in front of me; the only difference between me and the judge there is that he gets $7,500 a year more than I do, and he deserves it.

But it is great to be Chief Justice, particularly if you know what splendid fellows there are in the court.

But there is one place where all this doesn't amount to anything, and that is at 422 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, where I live. I have found that Mrs. Russell's jurisdiction was in no way disturbed by the advent of this great Chief Justice. If I get home a little late and say, "I have been out with Dr. Stires, that man of God, and with Delancey Nicoll, that man of forensic distinction," I will have to produce one of these little menus and prove my alibi and show cause just as in the long ago: that is because she knows.

But it is just the same with those fellows who don't know. I am under oath to visit about seventy different institutions where are secluded the insane and feeble-minded, the flotsam and jetsam of this great metropolis. We have at Ward's Island about eighteen hundred patients; and there is Letchworth Village, where you taxpayers have got to put up several million dollars when this cruel war is over, to carry all the insane and feeble-minded people up there—I happened to be out there last Monday at five o'clock, and I knocked at the door, and a fellow came out with a big chain around his neck; he looked as if he was one of the chief waiters at the Waldorf Astoria; and he says, "Come Tuesday;" I said, "I came from Brooklyn and it is a long way off;" he answered, "Them are the rules;" (he wasn't a graduate of any of these great colleges where Dr. Stires and these other learned men come from). I said, "What?"

"What?" I was angry and my wrath rose, and I said, "You don't know whom you are talking to; I can visit this institution for the insane and feeble-minded any day I see fit; I am the Chief Justice of the Court of Special Sessions of the City of New York;" and I got this answer: "Chief Justice, are you, g'wan, man, you're foolish; I have got five of them in here now." (Laughter.)

Now, I thank you for bearing with me so long; but I do want to say a few words about the law, about shop, about the atmosphere in which I live, and to pay my tribute in a few humble words to that profession which has done so much for us all.

Now, I think that in America we reverence the law, and our hope is in reverence for the law, for courts, for the temples of justice, for the altars and the ministers and priests in those great temples. If you say, "No," then you will have to go back to militarism.

Within the last few years I have been in every great city of Europe. I have a boy who was at Oxford, and he came back with three diplomas and four gold medals, and with him I have wandered through most of these places from the mountains of Norway to the cataracts of the Nile. I have been in such places as Munich—and that I think is the prettiest city in the world and the nicest place to live in, if you can't live in New York. There I saw women doing the work that is done here by Bill Edwards' White Wings, sweeping up the refuse on the street; there I saw a woman, gray haired—she looked like my sainted mother, bent over, sixty-five years of age—acting as a porter in a public place, carrying a big box of dry goods, which, if it had been carried on a one-horse truck in this city, would have condemned the driver to a term on Blackwell's Island for cruelty to animals. I saw no steam threshers in the fields; I saw women working just as I worked forty years ago, or nearly fifty years ago, when I was a farmer on Long Island, with the simplest and rudest agricultural implements. Will we stand for a thing like that, while we husbands and sons of these women are out drinking beer or dangling swords? I tell you Nay.

I have four boys; they are not here; I love them as you love yours; they are over twenty-one and they weigh eight hundred pounds all together. Now, if they were in Germany, they would be spending about three years each in the army, carrying a gun and looking for the enemy. We will never stand for it in America. I glory in the small amount of militarism that we have here. (Laughter and applause.)

We have the transcendent genius, if the occasion arises, as it has arisen, to revolutionize warfare when it needs to be revolutionized, naval warfare and land warfare. I say our reliance is in the law; I say our chief reliance is in reverence for the law; not that our legislature is omnipotent—I don't think it is and I am very glad it isn't; it has too much to do now. Perhaps it is dangerous to have the legislature deal so largely as it does with paternalism, with questions of hours of labor and things of that kind. I don't think we can arrive at the millennium and regulate such things as late hours and all the other details of human society by a single act of the legislature, any more than we can create by act of the legislature one dollar or one cent or any infinitesimal amount of wealth. The law has its frontier; there is a sphere into which it cannot enter without peril to human liberty.

So, the chiefest of all the good things in this world is justice. I think it was John G. Holland who said of justice, "It is the whitest worth, that shines in Heaven, or lives upon the earth,—pure as the dewdrop that bedecks the sod, and strong as pillars of the throne of God." If anybody tells you that judges have their price and that judgments of the courts can be bought or sold like sheep in the shambles, like securities in the market, you tell that man that he lies. (Applause.)

Now, two great principles, law and force, arms and reason, are competing for the obedience of the world. Rome gave us both of these principles. The earliest leader of humanity was the strong man with a sword. A few generations ago these leaders carried the sword as part of their equipment; the sword was a necessary part of the equipment of a gentleman of Japan; and, in the House of Parliament a man always wore his sword as Prince Bismarck used to do.
in

A Roman pageant was the most gorgeous of all the barbaric pageants. It was Cæsar who first pushed civilization beyond the borders of the Mediterranean, into Helvetia, Gallia, Hispania, Germania, Britannia and Belgium. Three times did Cæsar triumph; kings were drawn at his chariot wheel; and a slave whispered in his ear, "Remember thou art but a man." In the crisis of the procession, as it swept up the Capitoline Hill, the mad crowd yelled, "Go, triumphe." That was an exhibition of the lust of conquest, of the love of dominion over one's fellow men a principle ever active in the Eternal City and which never rested until the world was at her feet. While Cæsar was in his triumphal car, another man, old, bald-headed and perhaps gray, sat in his toga upon the judgment seat, and the rule of right reason which he announced has prevailed over the shock of arms. Roman law conquered where the legions were overthrown, crossed great oceans and subdued continents beyond distant seas.

Rome ruled by her reason long after she ceased to rule by her authority. That is the empire that knows no decline and fall, the rule of right reason that overcame the very Goths and barbarians that sacked the Seven-hilled City.

Last summer I spent two nights in Rome and I visited every hill in the City. I had to go down two flights of stairs to get to one hill, but I got there all right. I found the forum deserted, the Cæsars were handfuls of dust; but the Roman prætor is to be found on the judgment seat of all civilized communities. He is found to-day in Washington in the person of Edward Douglas White, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. He is found in the High Court of Justice of England, in the Court of Cassation in Paris, and wherever there is civilization, wherever there is a bank or a railroad or any of the institutions of commerce.

There is a Dutchman that I know—there are those who don't like him, but forget that—because I do want to say there is a Dutchman that I know who illustrates just this same thing,—Mr. Roosevelt of Nassau County, Long Island. I love to see his picture, whether with a fine Prince Albert coat, as a representative of the strenuous life, or in a khaki uniform that cost $4.50—I always love to see him. They say he shot a man at Santiago. There is a fellow over in Brooklyn who contradicts that, and says he never shot a man and never was at the battle of San Juan Hill. But, listen to me—I tell you to go to Gettysburg. There is a big long field there, and, when you get there (borrow the money from your wife or do anything that is necessary to get to that splendid battlefield) you can see how it was with Roosevelt. Many of the brave generals whose names live in history were never actually in the little village of Gettysburg. And so with Roosevelt at San Juan, when the order came to take a hill in the wide field that we now call San Juan, he didn't stop to ask its name. He simply drew his sword, rallied the Rough Riders at his command, stormed the citadel, and drove the Spaniards from the heights. What a spectacle was the gallant Roosevelt then, a belted knight, and hound of war; I can almost see his teeth. But, do you know, I don't like to remember him that way. I remember years ago, during the Japanese War how sick I felt in looking over the newspapers in the morning, when in far off Manchuria two armies of a million men each were lined up in murderous duel fighting to the death for the empire of the East. The chancelleries of Europe took up the task of pacification and the reverend clergy took it up; and they all failed; they stopped praying even and lost hope. Everybody lost hope save one man, and he didn't lose hope. But he persevered until he brought out of the darkness and gloom that had fallen on Manchuria the glorious light of the Peace of Portsmouth. I love to think of Roosevelt, not as a warrior, killing a man, but as a white-winged angel of peace walking majestically between angry armies, holding in check the victorious sons of Nippon and waving back where they belonged the barbarian hordes of Russia. (Long and continuous applause.)
to

I stand

I stand for law. General Grant said many things worth remembering: "I have been trained as a soldier," said Grant, "I have been in many engagements, but I know of no cause of controversy, international or otherwise, that might not well be submitted to the arbitrament of reason." All questions, even those involving national honor, may be so submitted; and, speaking, as I do to-night, to men of English speech and tongue, let me say that for one hundred years we have lived at peace with England, and yet we have had a controversy over every foot of our northern boundary from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and not one drop of blood has been spilled, and no forts have disputed the peaceful passage of merchants and others across the border line.

Now, I have faith and hope—where it comes from I do not know—from the prayers perhaps of my mother or from the long sermons of my father, through which I often used to sleep, but the memory of his life is always with me. In spite of the waste of anarchy in Europe to-night and the awful hurricane of death, still must we trust God that with his divine blessing we may save the fruits of civilization, of which the greatest is civil liberty, justice and righteousness among the sons of men; and that international law and civil liberty, for which Holland has done so much to make the world her debtor, will not be lost forever and perish from the earth; for if this should happen then, indeed would mankind be left stripped of her heritage of civilization and lie naked and shivering at the gates of anarchy. I believe that a world state can result from this war; and if in God's Providence, Europe is disarmed, and the Kaiser, the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns and every son of privilege be rolled off his lofty perch of noble birth and compelled to work for a living, like the President of this Society, then it may perhaps be that this war will be worth all it costs, and we may live to see the time—I may not but your children may—when the vision and prophecy of Tennyson in his song in Locksley Hall, will be fulfilled, where "The war drum throbs no longer, and the battle-flag is furled

in the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world."

I hope this may come, and if in the future we have any trouble with the Italians, those fellows called the Mafia, or with Canadians over their fish bait, or with the Emperor of Japan with reference to the public school systems in Denver or San Francisco, instead of the old barbaric cry "To arms! To arms!" the children of that generation will rather hear the summons of a world-tribunal, "To the Hague, To the Hague!" (Great applause.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: It is a matter of great regret that Major General Wood, who was invited to respond to the toast of "The Army," is unable to be present to-night. We will therefore drink to the well-being of that body on which we rely for our defence, and, if need be, for our offence, the United States Army. (Applause.)

(The toast was drunk standing.)

It is very pleasant to be able to announce the presence of a Rear Admiral of the Navy, who will speak to us on the interesting organization of which he is the head. I introduce to you Rear Admiral N. R. Usher, of the Navy. (Applause.)

ADDRESS OF REAR ADMIRAL N. R. USHER¹ OF THE UNITED STATES NAVY

REAR ADMIRAL USHER: Mr. President, Members of The Holland Society, and Honored Guests and Ladies: I take pleasure in being present as a guest of The Holland Society, and in saying for the Navy how much it appreciates the farsightedness and acumen of your Hollander forbears in selecting the banks of the Hudson as the site of their settlements. They had no White Way to beckon them on to this locality, as many of our fellow citizens have who so joyfully travel this way.

The Navy, my friends, is not heard from in speeches—by its deeds shall ye know it. Our Navy, it is claimed by some, antedates even the Army. The Continental Congress, before the Declaration of Independence, and in the spring of 1775, commissioned General Washington, Commander in Chief of its Army, and Esek Hopkins, Commander in Chief of its Navy, which was yet to be found. The Continental Congress appointed a naval committee of three to select ships and officers and to find men to make a navy. They chose understandingly the term "Commander in Chief of the Navy" and intended that Captain Hopkins should have the same rank as General Washington. The officers of those days were selected from our merchant ships, and, from our merchant ships came volunteers who formed our enlisted force. From that day to this our navy has been manned by volunteers. It is a far cry from those days of wooden walls to great armor clads, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aëroplanes of to-day; but there is no greater change in the ships and the guns than there is in the men in our service. In those days those volunteers spoke half the languages of the world and represented as many nationalities. To-day over ninety-four per cent of our men are Americans, native born (applause); and the balance are naturalized citizens. There are no aliens. There is no ship that flies the pennant to-day wherein one is not likely to find more Americans fore and aft than can be found in any city, town, hamlet or village in our broad land. (Applause.)
by

And with the changing of the nationality there has come another change; the marlin spike seaman of old has passed indeed, and, in the multitudinous detail of the modern ship we are demanding technical skill in every department, and that has called into being a new class of seafaring men, who, volunteers as before, represent every part of our land. Owing to our later legislation we no longer get the seafaring men of the coast; it is now required that every recruit shall present, not only recommendations, but evidence of his age to establish legality of enlistment, also that his parents or guardians consent to his enlistment under the flag. Seafaring men do not carry parents and guardians handy, and hence, most of our men come from the interior and from such localities as can produce the required evidence. Our young men, graduates of grammar schools or high schools for the most part—I speak advisedly when I say young men—our crews are young. I have lately, for the last four or five years, served in the Atlantic Fleet, and the average age of our men is about twenty-two years; and it is the leaven of older men which brings it up to that. Under the laws of our country we are allowed fifty-two thousand five hundred enlisted men. Our allowance is complete; we have a waiting list. (Applause.) No longer do the parents object. On the contrary, they are proud to get their sons in. For every man we take, many are rejected, not only for physical reasons but for other reasons. Men are obliged nowadays to bring recommendations to get into the Navy.

There are in our broad land, if figures may be trusted, nigh upon a hundred million people. There are in the Navy of the United States, the first line of our defense from foreign trouble, less than three thousand officers and fifty-two thousand five hundred enlisted men. To them are added about four hundred officers and nine thousand nine hundred men in the marine corps. This forms our first line. We have in every State of our Union, militia; there is no naval militia, there is no naval reserve. We have, it is true, within the confines of our coasts, a large and prosperous sea trade employing many men, but, from the broad seas our flag has disappeared. When these men of whom I speak are gone, there is no reserve.

These serious questions have not been suddenly brought to light; it is perfectly well known. I only mention it because just now in the public prints and elsewhere there is much and unusual discussion concerning preparation for the future.

In building our ships we are second to none. Ship for ship, gun for gun, no better float. There are larger navies, but, unit for unit, ours are as good if not better than those of others. (Applause.)

The subject of the national defense is not a new one;
it

it is as old as our flag. This sudden interest, however, as we may all understand, has been brought home to all of us as we behold across seas what is happening. In times past, and I hope it will always be so in the future, whenever and wherever our navy is called upon, we may depend upon it to do its duty and to accomplish its purpose. (Applause.)

PRESIDENT BROWER: This speech will conclude our Thirtieth Annual Dinner.

THE THIRTIETH ANNUAL MEETING

THE Thirtieth Annual Meeting of The Holland Society of New York was held in the Hotel Astor, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, New York City, on Tuesday, April 6, 1915. The Annual Meetings are always held on this date in commemoration of the VERBOND DER EDELEN—Confederation of the Nobles—when in 1566, A. D., the Dutch combined against tyranny and adopted the badge which is now the badge of our Society.¹ President William Leverich Brower took the chair and called the meeting to order.

The minutes of the Twenty-Ninth Annual Meeting were, on motion, approved as printed in Year Book for 1914, pages 239 to 262.

President William Leverich Brower then submitted his annual report, as follows:—

The President reports, with great pleasure, the completion of another successful year of our honored Society. The Trustees have held all the stated meetings and the business of the Society has been transacted in due form. Your President wishes to acknowledge the efficient services of all the standing committees and of the two Secretaries, all of which has contributed so largely to make this a successful year. The Annual Smoker was held, as usual, at the Hotel Astor, on November 24, 1914, with 320 persons present. The main feature of the evening was an illustrated lecture by Dr. William Elliot Griffis on "The Walloons." Our Thirtieth Annual Dinner was a successful affair and was held at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of January 21st. The library of our Society is an interesting institution, and is open especially to the members and also to others interested in genealogical and research matters. The matter of a statue to "William the Silent," arrangement for which has been entirely completed, was arrested by the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, and still remains in statu quo. The Society was represented on April 4, 1914, at the Jubilee Feast of the Netherland Society by our Recording Secretary, who also was specially requested by the President to represent the Society at the 250th Anniversary of the founding of the City of Elizabeth, N. J., which exercises were held on October 25, 27 and 28, 1914. The interchange of courtesies between our sister societies has been maintained, although, owing to the appalling wars which are being enacted on European soil, some of the societies have omitted their usual functions. The President accepted an invitation to represent the Society at the 131st Annual Dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, which was held on March 17, 1915. He attended the dinner in person and enjoyed the evening very much indeed.
of

An invitation was received last May from the Lower Wall Street Business Men's Association for the appointment of a committee to participate in the dedication of a tablet to be erected at the southeast corner of Wall and Water Streets, May 23, 1914, to commemorate the 140th Anniversary of the Merchants' Coffee House, which formerly stood on the site. The President appointed a committee of five, and attended this dedication personally. An Historical Convention, under the auspices of the same Association, was held at the Fraunces' Tavern on Saturday, October 31, 1914, with the coöperation of the Ter-Centenary Commission, and the Recording Secretary attended the same, representing the Society at the request of the President. The aldermen of the City of New York proposed to change the name of Varick Street to Seventh Avenue South. This happened between Trustees' meetings, and the Trustees could not very well take action upon it, so your President took the responsibility of requesting the Recording Secretary to represent the Society at this meeting, which he did at a public hearing on the question, which was held in the aldermanic chambers on February 25, 1915, in order to protest against any change of name of Varick Street. In this protest many patriotic and historical societies joined, and the protest was successful, so that we shall not have the name of Seventh Avenue South instead of Varick Street. It only remains for me to say that in relinquishing the office of President, to which you have exalted me for the past two years, which I shall do in a few minutes, I wish to record my profound appreciation of the confidence and good will of the members of our beloved Society. It has certainly been one of the greatest honors of my life to officially represent such a notable Society. I congratulate the Society upon the selection of so worthy a successor, Mr. Gerard Beekman; he is not yet President, but I presume he will be shortly. I remember when I was quite a boy, my father, who was associated with Mr. Beekman's father in a position of trust in New York, used to quote to me some of the sayings of James W. Beekman, the father of our Gerard Beekman. He said that one day Mr. Beekman told three good rules for public speaking, and I have remembered them till this day. Mr. Beekman said that if you want to be a good public speaker there are three rules to govern you: 1, stand up straight; 2, speak out loud and 3, shut up quick. (Laughter.) Mr. James W. Beekman was President of the St. Nicholas Society about fifty years ago; it was 1868 and 1869, and, surely, if he had been living, he would have been President of The Holland Society. Another thing that draws me to Mr. Beekman is the fact that I myself have been doing business

business for about two generations on a street in this city that was named after his father, Beekman Street. I congratulate the Society on the nomination of so suitable a person as Mr. Beekman, and I do not think that there is any fitter person than he who could be called upon to represent this honorable Society. (Applause.)

Recording Secretary Van Winkle took the chair and put the motion, which was then made, seconded and carried, to adopt the report and print the same in the Year Book.

Treasurer Van Brunt offered the following report which had been previously mailed to the membership in the notice calling the Annual Meeting.

TREASURER VAN BRUNT: You have all had the printed report of the Treasurer, and the figures speak for themselves. I only want to say that the cash balance is only $676.38, which is unusually small. Last year we printed, not only the regular Year Book for 1914 but also the 1907 Year Book. Incidentally, I also wish to say that the Trustees insisted on taking all my surplus funds for investment in bonds, which, as you will find, they have borrowed for their investments, thus reducing the cash reserves. I have opposed this plan of over-investment without avail.

On motion duly made, seconded and carried the report was received, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Recording Secretary Edward Van Winkle then presented his Annual Report as follows:

To the Members of The Holland Society of New York,

MIJNE HEEREN:—

The total number of members reported in the notice for the Annual Meeting was nine hundred and eighty-nine, with a loss by death since then of five and by resignation two, making the present membership nine hundred and eighty-one.

During the year we have lost by death the following members:

Trustees'

Trustees' Meetings: The Trustees have met, upon the invitation of the President, as follows: June 11, 1914; October 8, 1914; December 10, 1914; March 11, 1915. All of these meetings were held at Delmonico's, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, New York City.

Society's Meetings: On November 24, 1914, the Annual Smoker was held in the Hotel Astor, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, New York City.¹ On January 21, 1915, the Thirtieth Annual Dinner was held in the Waldorf-Astoria, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, New York City.² This year the souvenir took the form of a tray³ containing the seal and a view of Old Amsterdam, depicting "Schreyers Toren," the tower where relatives and friends of the emigrants to Nieuw Nederland would congregate and wave a last farewell to the departing ships as they started on, what was then, a perilous journey. A number of plaques, 2" x 3 1/4", similar in size to those distributed at previous dinners, have been struck from the die and may be purchased at the Society's office by those wishing to complete their sets of historical medals and plaques issued by the Society. A number of complete sets of these plaques are on hand and are available for sale. On April 6, 1915, the Annual Meeting was held in the Hotel Astor.⁴

Branch or County Meetings: The Poughkeepsie District members celebrated their Twenty-fifth Annual Dinner in commemoration of the Siege of Leiden at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., October 3, 1914.⁵ The Hudson County members celebrated their Third Annual Banquet in the Jersey City Club, Jersey City, N. J., December 8, 1914.⁶

Accessions: The list of accessions and purchases for the Library and Archives, during the year, will be found detailed in the 1915 Year Book.⁷

The Recording Secretary officially represented the Society at the following functions:

(1) The Jubileum Feest 50 jarig Stichtingsfeest der der Nederlandsche Vereeniging on Saturday evening, April 11, 1914. Ambassador Ridder Van Rappard and Consul Bakhuyzen were also present. After the dinner there was informal dancing.

(2) The Lower Wall Street Business Men's Association convened on May 23, 1914, to unveil a tablet on "The Merchants' Coffee House." A luncheon was served at Fraunces' Tavern to delegates from the historical societies immediately preceding the ceremonies.

(3) The October Third Dinner of the Poughkeepsie members in the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. This was the Twenty-fifth Annual Dinner of this branch and is celebrated in commemoration of the Seige of Leiden.

(4) The Two Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Founding of the City of Elizabeth on Municipal Day, October 27, 1914. A civic meeting was held in The Old First Church, after which a reception was tendered Governor Fielder in the rotunda of the Union County Court House, with luncheon to the Governor and special guests of the city in the Cateret Arms. In the afternoon the dedication of the tablet at St. John's Church, which was presented to the city by the Society of Colonial Wars, commemorating the Two Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the Founding of the City, with parade and band concerts.

(5) The Historical Convention, under the auspices of the Lower Wall Street Business Men's Association, with the coöperation of the Ter-centenary Commission, on Saturday, October 31, 1914. Luncheon was served to the delegates from thirty historical and genealogical societies at Fraunces' Tavern, after which they removed to the board room of the Coffee Exchange where an Historical Meeting was held, for the purpose of considering plans for the correction of many errors of history, and emphasizing the historical facts heretofore omitted by historians. A committee was appointed to encourage the writing of a correct history of New York and monographs upon special subjects.

(6) A public hearing in the aldermanic chambers was held on Thursday, February 25, 1915, in reference to the change of name of Varick Street to Seventh Avenue South. About fifty patriotic and historical societies protested against the resolution before the board of aldermen, and there were only three owners of property in the Ninth Ward who spoke for the change of name. The aldermen rejected the proposed resolution unanimously, and Varick Street will continue in the street directory of New York.
to

Library Improvements: It has been the desire of the Recording Secretary to make the Library primarily more useful to the membership. It is manifestly impossible for any genealogist to collect, preserve, and digest for himself the voluminous literature of his profession. He must depend upon the work of others—reviewers, indexers, abstractors and librarians. Until a recent date a library considered its duty accomplished when it had acquired, preserved, cataloged and indexed the literature of the subjects covered. A reader was forced to visit the library to get the information. But the up-to-date librarian is adopting a new policy which makes complete service possible to students at a distance.

To be specific: The Library of our Society is prepared to render the following service:

(1) It will verify references, furnish abstracts, copies of records, and translations.

(2) It will furnish partial or complete genealogies, covering the Dutch period of New Netherland, and where the original sources are not available to the client, furnish either copies, abstracts, or translations as may be necessary or desirable.

Arrangements have been made for accurate, technical translation of Dutch and photographic copies of documents. A nominal charge is made for this service to cover cost—for research, seventy-five cents per hour; for translation, thirty-five cents for one hundred words; photographs, 11" x 14", for seventy-five cents.

Domine Selyns' Diary: The Society is particularly fortunate in having the opportunity to publish the Diary of Domine Selyns both in the original Dutch and in the translation, which has been acquired through the generosity of our President, William L. Brower. At the

the meeting of the Trustees on December 10th a Committee was appointed to take active steps for the publication of this Diary as part of the Society's collections. It will appear during the coming year as Volume V and will not be gratuitously distributed to the membership but will be sold.

During the year the Library of the Society has been consulted to a considerable extent by genealogists and municipalities on historical matters pertaining to the Dutch period in New Netherland, and the new seal for the Borough of Pompton Lakes was designed by the office. We have been able to be of assistance in this manner to a number of students of history; but we have not been considered by our City Fathers during their preliminary studies, resulting in the adoption of the present official flag of the City of New York. This blue, white and orange flag, in vertical stripes, which is now the official flag of the City of New York, was offered for adoption by the Art Commission Associates, whose report was presented to the Trustees at the March meeting with a request for their endorsement.

Year Book 1914: On April 27, 1914, the current Year Book of the Society was sent by express to each member in good standing and about two hundred libraries and genealogical and historical societies on the approved exchange list. Following the custom of last year, two hundred and fifty sets of loose leaves, containing the Bergen Records, have been printed and reserved for binding, together with the records of the same Church appearing in the 1913 and 1915 Year Books. These records are to be bound this coming month as Volume IV of the Society's Collections, and are to be sold to libraries and students of genealogy at six dollars per volume.

Year Book 1915: This Year Book will be delivered to the members on or before May 1, 1915. The entire book is finished; printed signatures are herewith submitted complete, with the exception of the signature which is to contain the Minutes of this meeting. (Applause.)

All of which is respectfully submitted by the Recording Secretary.

EDWARD VAN WINKLE.

MR. ARTHUR H. VAN BRUNT: I move that the Recording Secretary be authorized to cast one ballot for the nominees named by the Nominating Committee.

MR. FREDERICK A. WALDRON: I second the motion.

THE PRESIDENT: There being no objections the motion is in order. All in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye. Contrary, no. It is carried.

THE PRESIDENT: The Recording Secretary will cast a ballot for the proposed officers.

Recording Secretary Van Winkle then cast the official ballot.

THE PRESIDENT: The Recording Secretary has cast the official ballot, and announces the result to be as reported by the Chairman of the Nominating Committee.

Judge Frank Hasbrouck was then invited to take the chair, the new President being absent, and the meeting proceeded with the regular order of business.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Mr. E. Covert Hulst presented the formal report of the Committee on Finance as follows:

April 6, 1915.

WILLIAM L. BROWER, ESQ.,

President of The Holland Society.

Dear Sir:—

This is to certify that I have examined accounts, and vouchers

vouchers appertaining thereto, of Arthur H. Van Brunt, Treasurer of the Society, for the year ending March 1, 1915, and have found the same correct.

I have also examined the securities constituting the investments as set forth in the Annual Report of such Treasurer, and have found the same correctly set forth therein.

Yours very truly,
E. COVERT HULST,
Chairman of Finance Committee.

Upon motion the report was accepted and ordered printed in the Year Book, and upon further motion the report of the Treasurer was received and ordered placed on file.

Mr. Tunis G. Bergen, Chairman of the Committee on Statue to William the Silent, then presented the following report:

MR. BERGEN: Since the last report, a year ago, I have to report that contracts for the casting of a replica of the statue of William the Silent, at The Hague, were all agreed upon and put in form and were actually signed and sealed by the Society's officers, under the authority given last July. The correspondence had reached the point when we were ready to transfer the contracts to Holland, with the first payment under the agreement. The cast was to be made by the National Foundry Company in Brussels. Within twenty-four hours the war in Europe was declared, and I held back the contracts. Correspondence indicates that probably nothing can be done during the war, and therefore the contracts will not be delivered. I afterwards made inquiry as to what had become of the plaster model of the statue, which was made by the sculptor, from the original in the Museum at Delft: the reply came that the model had been already shipped to Brussels, but they did not know whether it would ever reach that ill-fated city. A further letter to the effect that they had heard from the National Foundry in Brussels that the plaster model had arrived intact and had been deposited in the subterranean vaults of the Foundry, undisturbed. About a month or so ago I received another

another letter from one of the gentlemen in The Hague who had this casting in mind, to the effect that they had heard from one of the managers of the National Foundry Company of Brussels that he had returned from the war and was incapacitated, but that he would soon be able to resume work. In the meantime, no work of that kind was going on in Brussels. So, the plaster cast, gentlemen, I suppose, is intact in the subterranean vaults of the Foundry. The men who are left after the war, even though wounded, may be able to go on again with the work; but I have to report that I have not delivered the contracts, under the discretion and power given me by the Society, and that I have been obliged, because of the war, to hold up the whole matter for the present.

Which, upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, was adopted as a progress report.

Henry L. Bogert, Chairman of the Committee on History and Tradition, then presented the following report:

MR. BOGERT: Mr. Chairman and gentlemen: I have a report which is in three sections, and you may call it in the past, the present and the future. With regard to the past, I have taken the liberty on behalf of the Committee, of reporting concerning what has been known as the New York Commercial Ter-centenary, and I trust that I may be indulged in putting this before the Society as something worthy of note.

In December, 1912, Mayor Gaynor appointed a committee of citizens to consider the subject of celebrating the 300th Anniversary of the Settlement of Manhattan Island. The Committee met at the City Hall January 8, 1913, and it was questioned how far the settlement of Manhattan Island could be authoritatively identified with 1613, as had been suggested. The advocates of the year 1626, as the date of settlement, were emphatic and insistent with their arguments, and a controversy appeared imminent, when the suggestion was made that the first charter, granted in 1614 by the States General of the United Netherlands, for trading to New Netherland, afforded a date and an occasion worthy of whatever historical and commercial prominence prominence could be given to a Ter-centenary Celebration. The New York Commercial Ter-centenary Commission was thereupon incorporated in April, 1913, with the expressed object of commemorating the 300th anniversary of the beginning of the regularly chartered commerce of what is now the State of New York under the auspices of the States General of the United Netherlands in the year Sixteen hundred and fourteen. The President of The Holland Society, who was in office when the act of incorporation was introduced, was named as one of the Trustees of the Commission and remained with them until the celebration had been completed. The preliminaries and the organized preparation for celebrating this notable event, in the Dutch Colonial history of our City and State, followed the usual course of such enterprises, except that the business depression of recent years had produced such exhaustion in financial and commercial circles, and had so materially depleted the reserve funds of many citizens who would have ordinarily contributed with enthusiasm toward the success of the project, that the suggestions and even the earnest efforts of the Ter-centenary Commission towards obtaining appropriations from the state and from the city met with determined opposition. A minimum grant was made at Albany and even smaller comfort was vouchsafed in New York City, with the natural result of bringing the celebration down to lowest possible terms. The elaborate program was cut down, and, with the breaking out of the great European war, it was resolved to carry through only such portions of the celebration as had been entered upon and in which too great progress had been made to permit abandonment without serious loss. Field sports, public school music festivals, an automobile parade and a commercial pageant, followed by two weeks' exhibition of the contrasted commerce of early days and the achievements of 1914, were the salient features of the commemoration by this imperial city of the simple charter of 1614 granted by the States General. With all its disappointments, it is worthy to be chronicled as an important item in history, which should not be ignored by the Holland Society or by its Committee on History and Tradition.

An

An interesting item in the record of the Commission describes the adoption of its flag, as follows:

The flag consists of three equal vertical bars, Nassau blue, white and Nassau orange, the blue bar at the staff. In the centre of the white bar, the coat-of-arms.

The description of the Coat-of-arms is as follows:

Charge: Upon a shield argent a marine view; in base a Dutch merchant vessel under sail on a body of water all proper; sky argent and azure. Crest: On a wreath azure and argent a Dutch windmill proper. Supporters: Dexter: A Dutch merchantman proper. Sinister: A North American Indian proper.

Motto: Below the shield on a scroll argent, azure and or, "1614-1914."

The Chairman of the Flag Committee, Col. Louis Annin Ames, explained that the vertical arrangement of flag colors was first adopted by the City of Amsterdam in 1602 when the colors were red, black and red.

The Committee on History and Tradition further reports to The Holland Society that, at the meeting of Trustees held in March, there was submitted a report by a Committee of the Art Commission Associates on the Adoption of a Flag by the City of New York and the Restoration of the Ancient Corporate Seal, together with some correspondence between Mr. John B. Pine, of the Art Commission Associates, and The Recording Secretary.

The printed report of the Art Commission Associates, a copy of which is presented with this report, contained a representation in colors of the proposed flag and a photograph of the restored seal. It mentioned that the Art Commission of the City of New York had received the report of the Associates, and, after approving the recommendations and ordering that the report be printed, concluded by adopting the following in a resolution, recommending

"1. The adoption by the City as its official flag, and as a substitute for the flag now in use, a flag containing the colors orange, white and blue arranged in perpendicular bars of equal dimensions (the blue being nearest to the flag-staff), bearing the seal of the City in blue upon the middle or white bar, the colors to conform

as nearly as possible to those of the flag of the United Netherlands in use in 1626.

“2. The adoption by the City of the model of the corporate seal of the City herewith submitted, as the official design of such seal, the same to be cast in bronze or other permanent form and kept in the safe in the Mayor’s office, and the adoption of proper ordinances or other regulations requiring that hereafter all representations of the seal whether impressed or printed on City documents or publications or carved on City buildings shall be in exact conformity with such official design.”

The Associates reported, concerning the City flag now in use, that it had no official sanction nor could it be determined how long it had been in use, and the Committee expressed the opinion that the City might properly adopt a design with historical associations and artistic merit and one readily distinguishable from other flags in general use.

The report proceeded to set forth that the colors which first floated over the Island of Manhattan were “the orange, white and blue of the Dutch West India Company, which were also the colors of the United Provinces of the Netherlands in 1609 when Henry Hudson discovered the river named after him and when in 1626 New Amsterdam was settled by the Dutch.”

A quotation concerning the origin of the Dutch flag, from a history published at Amsterdam in 1831, was given in a translation. (Oorsprong der Nederlandsche Vlag—J. C. De Jonge.) This set forth that in 1582 the Netherlands possessed their own flag, the insignia or livery of William the Silent, orange, white and blue, with orange at the top, as commemorated by the cry “Oranje boven.” These colors were set forth in the commands of the Admiralty of Zeeland, published in 1587.

The report quotes from another work on the flag, published in 1900 (De Nederlandsche Vlag—C. De Waard, Groningen), stating that all flags used by the Dutch before 1630 were orange, white and blue, in which the blue was dark rather than light. I may interject at this time, Mr. Chairman, that one of the members of our Committee, Mr. Bergen, has made a special study of the matter of flags and colors of the Netherlands, and he informs me that the real color of the early days was red rather than orange.
members

The Committee obtained information from Prof. Alexander Smith, of the Chemistry Department at Columbia University, concerning the blue of that date, which indicated pure indigo as the proper color; the shade of orange was referred to as unquestioned in its authenticity; and thereupon the Committee recommended the proposed form of flag, as worthy of adoption by the city, because of historical associations, extending to the beginnings of New Amsterdam, artistic and decorative quality, and originality sufficient to distinguish it from flags in use by other cities or countries.

As a further recommendation, the report stated that it was desirable and in accordance with usage that the colors should be in perpendicular bars, the blue nearest the flag-staff, and the seal of the city upon the middle white bar.

The Trustees at first entertained the impression that it was intended to adopt the original Dutch flag of those early days, and that the use of vertical bars instead of horizontal stripes would be a misrepresentation, and should be condemned in the interest of historical accuracy, together with the suggestion that the date of settling New Amsterdam was 1626, as above noted. There arose the question of the order in which the colors of a tri-color flag should be read, and this was productive of considerable divergence of opinion. The statement of a leading manufacturer and dealer in flags was to the effect that general usage was to read the flags from the outermost color (or fly) towards the staff;¹ stating also that the instructions from nations who had such flags gave the colors in that order. On the other hand, all of the authorities consulted by the Recording Secretary indicate that the important or most honorable place ¹Note by Recording Secretary: This flag manufacturer cites as his authoritative reference the "French flag," red, white and blue, and reads from the fly to the staff. In this he is in error; the colors of the French flag are "Blue, white and red with blue in the honor point next the staff." See French decree of March 5, 1848; also Les Couleurs de la France 1879 by R. Quarre de Verneuil, page 85 and print 63, plate 8.

place was next to the staff (referred to in some quarters as the "honor point"), and the outermost color as the fly; referring further to the heraldic practice of tearing off the outermost section of a flag or banner, upon the field of battle, when the owner of the flag had distinguished himself and become entitled to a standard of two colors instead of banner of three. With the usages and authorities of heraldry and the question of precedence, in reading the colors of a vertically striped or barred tri-colored flag, the Committee on History and Tradition deems that it is not necessarily concerned at this time, since it is admitted that the flag of New York City is not to be regarded as the Dutch flag of 1626 or that general period, but is to be regarded as eloquently and emphatically reminiscent of that early flag, adopting its original colors, arranged differently; also, that the city seal will be placed upon the middle bar as a further note of distinction. Your Committee believes that no one should be misled into an erroneous conception of the original Dutch flag, nor that the newly adopted flag should be regarded as an exact counterpart of the old flag. In addition your Committee entertains the view that the glorious record of the old flag should entitle it to an undisturbed place in history, and that New York should not adopt nor appropriate that old flag, when by the plan proposed by the Art Commission Associates so excellent results may be achieved with equal deference to historical accuracy.

With reference to the statement that 1626 was the date of settling New Amsterdam, your Committee desires to enter its protest, and believes that further research and investigation are necessary to establish the proper date convincingly.

Referring to the seal of the city, although not specifically within the province of your Committee, in so far as the present seal was officially adopted after New Amsterdam had become New York, and the most recent change had been made after New York had become part of the new nation, the United States, yet the subject may be appropriately mentioned in this report. The design submitted by the Art Commission Associates Associates was artistic and excellent in all respects, in your Committee's opinion, except, perhaps, with reference to the date, which is given as 1664. Since the resolution of the Common Council in 1784 ordered that the royal crown upon the seal be defaced and that a soaring eagle upon a half globe should be substituted, as the crest upon the New York coat-of-arms, it appears to your Committee that the date of the seal could be no earlier than 1784; but that, in view of the earlier elements which remain, the other dates of significance, such as 1664 and 1686, and possibly other dates, might be included in less prominent positions. The seal of a corporation is its solemn signature, as would be the sign manual of an individual, and, with this exception, the seal recommended by the Art Commission Associates can be commended by The Holland Society; and the action of the aldermen, in adopting both flag and seal, can be commended as a notable advance in recognizing the importance of the Dutch of early days and their preëminent part in the foundation of our great city.

Your Committee has permitted me also to make a further supplementary report, which may deal with the future:

The "visiting list" or "parish book" of Domine Selyns, sometimes called "the first New York Directory," is a matter of such great interest and importance to the early history and to The Holland Society of New York that it must receive most complete attention during the coming year, when it is contemplated that it may be published under the auspices of the Society. It is essential that this work should receive most careful and studious supervision, and that in its final shape it shall reflect appropriate credit upon the outgoing President of The Holland Society, whose liberality has made it possible to bring this interesting work into definitive and authoritative form, and also in appreciation of its unique place in the history and literature of New York City.

In closing the report, Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer this resolution:

WHEREAS the Art Commission Associates of the City of New York have devoted much time and study to the designing and recommending of an appropriate flag for the City of New York and to the restoration and authentication of its corporate seal in harmony with the available records, and have presented a report which reflects credit upon their diligence and care (although their conclusion that Manhattan was settled in 1626 cannot be accepted nor adopted by us), be it

RESOLVED that The Holland Society of New York appreciates and applauds what has been so well and attractively prepared for acceptance by our city authorities and recognizes with much satisfaction the adoption and embodiment of the old colors of New Amsterdam, so strikingly set forth and so eloquently reminiscent of the old flag, upon whose glorious history it does not trespass, but bears filial and hearty tribute.

Upon motion, duly made, seconded and carried, the report was accepted and ordered printed in the Year Book, and upon further motion the resolution recommended by the Committee was unanimously adopted.

Tunis G. Bergen, Chairman of the Special Committee on Year Books in Arrears, reported as follows:

The Committee on Year Books in Arrears have the honor to report that the 1908 Year Book is now in the press and is being printed and will be out in a very short time. I dare not state again how soon it will be before the Year Book for 1909 comes out, but it ought not to be a very long time.

Upon motion the report was accepted as a progress report.

Tunis G. Bergen, Chairman of a Special Committee on Publication of Diary of Domine Selyns, reported as follows:

The Diary of Domine Selyns in the original is owned by our Ex-President, Mr. William L. Brower. He has kindly presented to the Society for the purpose of publication, both the Dutch original and an English translation, so that it may be reproduced by the Society as Volume V of our collection edited and published under the auspices of The Holland Society of New York. This gift of Mr. Brower affords us an opportunity to publish this invaluable historic record of one of the first first Domines of New Amsterdam; and the thanks of the Society are due to our Ex-President for this very interesting and very gracious gift in honor of the Society. A committee of three has been appointed to take charge of the publication which should issue during the year.

Upon motion the report was accepted as a progress report.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS

Tunis G. Bergen then offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, WILLIAM LEVERICH BROWER, President of The Holland Society of New York from April 7, 1913, to April 6, 1915, this day retires from the office which he has held with eminent success for two terms, during which the Society has prospered, now be it

RESOLVED, That we, his fellow-members, in Annual Meeting assembled, express to him our appreciation of his loyal devotion to the Society, of his enthusiastic interest in its welfare, of his conscientious performance of his official duties, and of his generosity in permitting the Society to publish the original diary of Domine Selyns, one of the earliest records of Nieuw Amsterdam; and we assure Mr. Brower of the esteem and affection, won by his course and conduct as our President, in which he is held by us all, and which we shall cherish and preserve in all our future associations with him.

HENRY L. BOGERT: I would like to have the honor of seconding this resolution; and I think it ought to be brought to the notice of our associates here that Mr. Brower is the first of those who have been elected to the Presidency of The Holland Society to occupy that chair for more than one term, since the death of our first President, Judge Van Vorst. Judge Van Vorst occupied the chair for five terms, and therefore no one was reëlected until our well beloved William Leverich Brower became our candidate the second time. I think that distinction is one which has been well deserved and one which we were proud to give him, and we second the adoption of the resolution which has been offered, I think, with such unanimity and cordiality as shall leave no doubt in his mind or any doubt in the minds of any of his associates. (Applause.)

CHAIRMAN

CHAIRMAN HASBROUCK: It gives me great pleasure, gentlemen, to present this resolution for your adoption. As an Ex-President of the Society, I know that it was the unwritten law for many years that no President should be reëlected. Mr. Brower has broken that law, that is, we were pleased to break the law in behalf of Mr. Brower, and we are all glad that we did it. All in favor of the resolution will please signify by saying aye. (Great chorus of ayes.)

The motion is unanimously carried. (Applause.)

RECORDING SECRETARY VAN WINKLE then read the following letter received from our Vice-President from New England.

March 25, 1915.

Recording Secretary.

My dear Sir:—

I have the notice of the annual meeting of The Holland Society and regret very much that Church duties in connection with Easter week will make it impossible for me to accept. That is one of the disadvantages (very few they are) of living in Boston that one has to miss so many Holland Society gatherings. My heart is always with my Dutch brethren, however.

I wish that the Holland Society itself might in some official and collective way, do something to show its sympathy for the Belgians. We are one people, of course, historically considered. While doubtless individual members have all done their part toward Belgian relief, it seems to me that something official by way of tribute to King Albert, or to the little Princess Marie José, would serve to stimulate the imagination. Believe me,

Yours very sincerely,

WILLIAM HARMAN VAN ALLEN.

CHAIRMAN HASBROUCK: Gentlemen, you have heard the communication from our New England Vice-President; will you take any action upon it?

TUNIS G. BERGEN: As to the resolution favoring King Albert, suggested by the Vice-President from New England, no doubt it is a pleasant thing to contemplate in view of the heroic virtues of that young King; nevertheless, Holland is a neutral country and we are a neutral country. Heroism has been displayed by so many of the nations involved in the war, though I have not heard from the Turks lately—perhaps I am misinformed—that I should hesitate, for one, to go on record, being neither pro-British nor pro-Prussian myself, but pro-American, and I should hesitate to adopt at this time a special resolution singling out any one of the leaders of the various nations involved in the war. Those are my personal sentiments. (Applause.)

CHAIRMAN HASBROUCK: There is no doubt where the personal feeling and sympathy of the members of this Society is, and where their admiration goes. I agree with Mr. Bergen that perhaps it would not be wise or appropriate to take any action to-night as a Society on this matter. Is there any further business?

ARTHUR VAN BRUNT: I would suggest that that communication ought to be acknowledged, and I move that it be acknowledged and referred to the Trustees for such action as they may think proper.

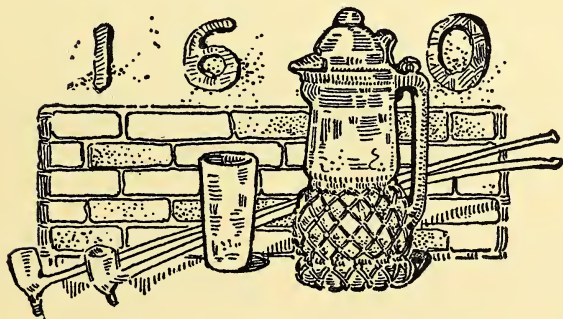

The motion was duly seconded and carried.

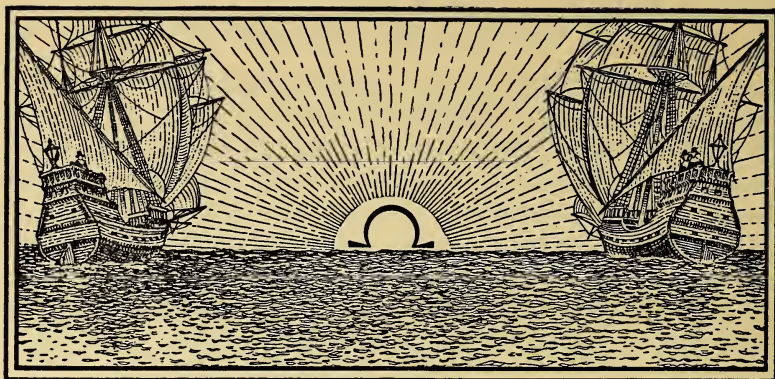

The business being concluded the meeting adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,

Edw. Van Brunt

Recording Secretary.

In Memoriam¹

WARNER VAN NORDEN²

Born—July 2, 1841

Died—January 1, 1914

WARNER VAN NORDEN was one of the most devoted, loyal and enthusiastic members The Holland Society ever had. While not one of the original founders, he was one of the earliest members, having joined the Society on March 14, 1885, its Constitution not having been finally adopted until April 30, 1885. During the whole long period of his membership, he was actively and earnestly interested in the welfare of the Society and was almost invariably present at all the meetings, gatherings and public occasions where the Society could be profitably represented, and he was always ready to take his part in whatever work was to be done for the furtherance and promotion of Holland Society objects. He was jealous of the good name of the Society and its standards, had well considered and definite views on all subjects and the ability to advocate these views. He also had the sometimes lacking characteristic of loyally abiding abiding by the will of the majority, even when it was not in accord with his own personal views; and all his associations with his fellow-members and fellow-officers of the Society were marked with a distinguished courtesy, affability and kindness, which were characteristic of him. He was elected President of the Society in the year 1894, and the Society flourished under his administration, and he was one of our most useful Presidents. He became a Trustee of the Society in the year 1895, and continued to be a Trustee continuously to the time of his death, ably serving for many years as Chairman of the Finance Committee, on the Committee on the Statue of William the Silent, and on other Committees. He was Treasurer of the fund raised for the erection of the statue of William the Silent. The frequent addresses made by him at annual meetings of the Society were interesting and often showed much historical research and knowledge; and on several occasions he responded eloquently to toasts at our annual banquets. In the year 1908, before the time of the Hudson-Fulton celebration, he gave a complimentary dinner at the Metropolitan Club to Baron van Asbeck, Captain of The Netherland ship, Gelderland, which was then visiting New York, and to the officers of his ship, which dinner was attended by the Trustees and officers of The Holland Society as guests of Mr. Van Norden. In 1909, he took an active part in behalf of the Society, representing it on various occasions in receiving The Netherland Commission to the Hudson-Fulton celebration. Warner Van Norden's interest and pride in his Holland blood and ancestry were great, and justly so, for the name of Van Norden has been prominent in the history of New Netherland and the State of New York. He was well known as a man of great enterprise in the business life of New York and elsewhere, and for many years he was President of the Bank of North America. He was a man of strong religious convictions and a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church, and was for many years intimately and actively connected with the management of the business and affairs of the churches of that denomination.

His

His death left a vacancy in the Board of Trustees which it will be difficult to fill. His tall, stately figure and benignant face were long familiar to the members of the Society and its Trustees and officers; his kindly presence will be missed, and his memory will be honored by them all.

CEBRA QUACKENBUSH

Born—September 7, 1838

Died—February 16, 1914

CEBRA QUACKENBUSH, the son of Peter Quackenbush and Mary Cebra Breese, was born in Hoosick, N. Y. The family was pure Dutch stock, his ancestors having intermarried solely among people of that nationality, and resided in Hoosick for the past 150 years. They originally came from Leyden, Holland. Early in 1865, while residing in Pittsfield, Mr. Quackenbush was elected Major of a Massachusetts regiment of volunteers. He was a delegate from Massachusetts to the national Democratic convention in 1876. He was a member of The Holland Society of New York since October 24, 1889, of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Masonic Lodge of Hoosick. He was a member of All Saints' Church in Hoosick, and a trustee of the Hoosick School. In 1859, Mr. Quackenbush married Mary Annette Gillette of Long Island, who died in 1891. He later married Minna Wilkinson Millard of North Adams. Surviving are the widow and three daughters, Mrs. F. St. George McLean, Mrs. Annette McCandliss, Mrs. Collins M. Graves.

HENRY MOORE TELLER

Born—May 23, 1830

Died—February 23, 1914

HENRY MOORE TELLER, was born at Granger, Allegany County, N. Y. He was educated at Rushford Academy

Academy and Alfred University, after which he taught school for several years, at the same time studying law. He was admitted to the Bar at Binghamton, N. Y. In 1858, he moved to Illinois and three years later went by ox team to Colorado. In 1876, he was selected by the Colorado legislature for the United States Senate. He resigned in 1882 to enter the cabinet of President Arthur as Secretary of the Interior. He remained in the cabinet until 1885, when he was reëlected to the Senate, where he remained until his retirement in 1909. In the latter part of the sixties he was made Major-General of the State militia. He was a member of The Holland Society from June 30, 1892. He was a thirty-third degree Mason, and President of the Colorado Central Railway. Senator Teller was married on June 7, 1862, to Harriet M. Bruce, of Allegany County, N. Y. Two sons and a daughter survive him.

GARRET DORSETT WALL VROOM

Born—December 17, 1843

Died—March 4, 1914

GARRET DORSETT WALL VROOM was a son of the late Governor Peter Dumont Vroom and a grandson of U. S. Senator Garret D. Wall, and was born in the City of Trenton, N. J. He received his education at the French Gymnasia, Berlin, the old Trenton Academy and Rutgers College, from which latter institution he was graduated in 1862, and at the time of his death was a trustee of that college. He studied law with his father, was admitted to the bar in 1865. In 1866, he was elected city solicitor, and again elected to that office in 1873. He was at one time Mayor of the City of Trenton, and President of the Board of Public Works. He was a Democrat politically. During the year 1901 he was appointed Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals. He was President of the Commission for the Revision of the Statutes for many years; a member of the Board of Pardons; member of the New Jersey Historical Association

Association; President and Manager of the Trenton Saving Fund Society; President of the Board of the Trenton School of Industrial Arts; a member of The Holland Society of New York, joining June 15, 1886; member of the American Bar and State Bar Associations and of the Mercer County Bar Association, and President of the Board of Managers of the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane. He was a prominent factor in the founding of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution in New Jersey. Besides his widow, he leaves one daughter, Miss Gertrude G. Vroom, and one brother, Brigadier-General Peter D. Vroom.

NICHOLAS VREELAND

Born—June 18, 1884

Died—March 29, 1914

NICHOLAS VREELAND, twenty-nine years old, died at his home of pneumonia. He was born in Jersey City, and received his education at Hasbrouck Institute and Rutgers College. After graduation he studied law and was admitted to the Hudson County Bar, and thereafter practiced in Jersey City. Mr. Vreeland was a member of the Lodge of the Temple, No. 110, F. & A. M., a member of The Holland Society of New York, joining on June 13, 1907, a member of the Jersey City Club and of the Hudson County Historical Society. On October 6, 1909, he married Miss Gertrude Puster, daughter of former Judge Puster. His widow survives him, also his mother, Mrs. Sarah Vreeland.

EGBERT LE FEVRE

Born—October 29, 1858

Died—March 30, 1914

EGBERT LE FEVRE, M.D., SC.D., LL.D., died at his home in New York City after a brief illness. He was the son of James Le Fevre, D.D., and Cornelia Hasbrouck Le Fevre. He was graduated from Rutgers College in 1880 and later received the degree of A.M. In 1883 he was graduated from the University Medical College of New York as a prize student. During his professional life of thirty-one years he was consulting physician to six institutions and served upon the staff of many dispensaries and hospitals. He was also professor of therapeutics in the University and Bellevue Medical College and was made Dean of that Institute in 1898. He was a member of the American Medical Association, State Medical Society, New York Academy of Medicine and County Medical Society. He was admitted to The Holland Society on June 11, 1908.
the

AARON J. ZABRISKIE

Born—December 17, 1854

Died—April 15, 1914

AARON J. ZABRISKIE, civil engineer and railway builder, died at his home in Jersey City, aged sixty years. He was graduated at the Polytechnic Institute, Albany, in the class of 1876, and was engaged in construction work. In 1888, he was appointed secretary of the New York Monument Commission, which position he had since held, during which he had designed the base of every monument erected for New York soldiers on southern battlefields, and supervised the construction of the work. Mr. Zabriskie was a member of The Holland Society, joining on December 13, 1894, and the American Society of Civil Engineers, and a director in the Fourteenth Ward Building and Loan Association of Newark, N. J. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Mary E. De Clark, three sons, George E., Cornelius, Allan J., and a daughter, Miss Gertrude Zabriskie.

EUGENE

EUGENE WOOD VEEDER

Born—April 7, 1861

Died—April 18, 1914

EUGENE W. VEEDER was born in the Town of Rotterdam, Schenectady County, N. Y., being of the seventh generation in the direct line from Simon Volkertse Veeder, who sailed on the ship Prince Maurice to New Amsterdam in 1644. There he bought a lot, sold it in 1654 for thirty beaver skins and went to Beverwyck and thence to Schenectady in 1662. After receiving his education, Mr. Veeder was employed by a large dry goods firm of Schenectady, later becoming a member of the firm. He retired from the dry goods trade and for about twenty years prior to his death had been engaged in the coal business. Mr. Veeder became a member of The Holland Society on December 17, 1909. He was also member of various Masonic bodies, and an attendant of the Second Reformed Church. Mr. Veeder is survived by his widow and one son, Eugene W. Veeder, Jr., two brothers and two sisters.

HARRISON VAN DUYNE

Born—December 25, 1845

Died—May 3, 1914

HARRISON VAN DUYNE, of Newark, died at his home after an illness of eleven days. He was the son of John R. and Sarah Doremus Van Duyne. His grandfather, Martin Van Duyne, bought land and settled in Morris County in 1730, and it was in this old homestead that he was born. Mr. Van Duyne was head of the firm of Harrison, Van Duyne & Son, surveyors. In 1879, he was elected a member of the Assembly and also served the following two years. He was speaker of the House in 1881. He was at one time a member of the Board of Works. He was a Mason, a Knight Templar, and a member of The Holland Society of New York, joining on

on March 14, 1895. He was also a member of the Eighth Ward Building and Loan Association, of the Newark Board of Trade, and a Director of the Firemen's Insurance Company. Mr. Van Duyne married Miss Elizabeth Frederica Ricord in 1871, and is survived by her and four sons and a daughter. They are Dr. Sarah Elizabeth Van Duyne, Harrison R. Van Duyne, Captain Frederick W. Died—January 20, 1915

JOSIAH VAN VRANKEN died at his home in Market Street, Potsdam, N. Y. Wednesday evening, January 20, 1915. Mr. Van Vranken's death was due to heart trouble with which he had been a sufferer for some time. He was seized with an attack while entertaining a party of friends and although it was known that his condition was serious, it was not thought it would result fatally. Mr. Van Vranken was born in Montgomery County, and the greater portion of his life was spent in Schenectady. He was a descendant of one of the early Dutch families who came from Holland and located in the Mohawk Valley. Mr. Van Vranken was a Democrat and was active in the local counsels of his party. He represented one of the wards of the city of Schenectady on the Board of Supervisors for some time. He was an expert accountant and had a good working knowledge of banking business. President Cleveland appointed him a bank examiner for the federal government. He served for many years, his territory embracing all of Northern New York. Mr. Van Vranken was a great admirer of Potsdam and took a keen interest in the town's welfare. He was very fond of children and there are a large number who can testify to his quiet unheralded generosity. The children of the Market Street School were entertained by him last Christmas and all were sent away with a substantial remembrance. The funeral services were held from his late home Friday afternoon, Rev. F. B. Cowan officiating. The body was taken to Schenectady and services were held there Saturday morning, Rev. James Meengs, of the Second Reformed Church, officiating. Interment was in Vale Cemetery in Schenectady. Mr. Van Vranken leaves no near relatives. He was seventy-three years of age; he joined the Society, June 26, 1888.
